

British Gain Control of Iran's Oil, Transportation in Swift Drive

Line of Supply To Reds Seen As Final Goal

Dnieperpetrovsk, Last Stronghold West of Dnieper, Said Lost.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. The British held control last night of substantially all of Iran's western oil reservoir and dominated the lower terminals of the country's sole railroad and its only two first-class highways.

The Russians, striking down from the north, were reported advancing without interruption upon Tabriz, a major point in Iran's northwest, and on Ardebil, 120 miles to the east.

The Allied invasion thus already had accomplished one of its prime objectives—to put Iranian oil out of reach of German use or German sabotage—and it was clear that this hard, brief drama of the Middle East was now running past its climax and toward its predestined end.

Supply Line Near. That end, in the larger sense, was the establishment of a strong line of military supply to the Russians, and it appeared that it was coming none too soon.

For the Germans declared last night that they had at last stormed and captured Dnieperpetrovsk, described by them as the last Russian position west of the Dnieper river, and claimed moreover that they had made another menacing breach in the Red defenses below Leningrad by capturing the railway point of Luga, 90 miles south of that northwestern metropolis.

The fall of Dnieperpetrovsk, one of the biggest industrial cities in the Ukraine—where already the Russians are gravely handicapped by the loss of substantially all the Black Sea coast west of the Dnieper—would lay open other industrial areas to the east. Too, its occupation would put the Germans in position to begin a drive in a long arc on the Soviet Caucasus, with its oil supplies, although that would be, without doubt, a weary and a bitter road.

Great Cost Admitted. Both victories—at Dnieperpetrovsk and at Luga to the north—were achieved only at great cost, Berlin itself admitted.

To take Luga alone, the Nazis acknowledged, the invaders had to break 112 defense bunkers and clear away nearly 3,000 mines.

Offensive operations which ended in Dnieperpetrovsk's occupation were claimed to have brought in an aggregate of 83,596 Red prisoners. The city's capture, the Germans claimed, gave them possession of all the southern Ukraine save besieged Odessa.

The Soviet command in its communiqué for yesterday was reticent, giving no information as to the position in any specific sector.

Air Battles Indicated. In its official war bulletin for this morning the Red general staff again omitted any specific information, making only the general report that stubborn fighting continued everywhere.

Mighty air combats about Leningrad were suggested by its announcement that in the last two days Soviet airmen guarding the city's approaches had destroyed in the air and on the ground a total of 101 German planes.

Russian military dispatches, however, reported that the Germans driving upon Leningrad were suffering ghastly losses before concentrated Red machinegun fire from redoubts scattered among the woods. Even Nazi tank charges were thus being repulsed, it was claimed.

Civilians Join Defense. Thousands of Leningrad's civilian population were said to be learning how to disable tanks with grenades and gasoline bombs. Girls in overalls and berets marched with the "People's Army" formed to aid the Soviet regulars.

The city's anti-aircraft defenses were busy; Berlin reported an overnight raid which was declared to have set great fires in Leningrad's railway stations and yards. Unofficial Russian reports from

'Gestapo Chief' in Argentina Quarrels With Envoy, 'Flees'

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 26.—(P)—A violent argument was reported to have taken place today between German Ambassador Baron Edmund von Thiermann and Gottfried Sandstede, his press attaché, just before the latter took a plane in flight from Argentina, giving the ship to a congressional committee investigating subversive activities.

Sandstede, described by the press as "the chief of the Gestapo of our country," evaded a police net established by the committee seeking him concerning his activities in Argentina.

Before boarding the plane for what the embassy called a "routine trip" Sandstede withdrew his entire bank account of 9,000 pesos ($2,100). The embassy said he was going to Berlin via the Italian transatlantic Lati line and would be gone three or four weeks.

Saturday Seen F.D.R. To Send As Launching Army Mission Date of Cruiser To Aid Chinese

Margaret Mitchell To Swing Bottle Christening 'Atlanta.'

The 6,000-ton cruiser, U. S. S. Atlanta, will be launched Saturday under tentative plans revealed yesterday by the Navy.

The launching, at which Authoress Margaret Mitchell is to swing the christening bottle of champagne, was originally scheduled for August 9 at Kearny, N. J., shipyards, was later postponed to August 23, and finally indefinitely postponed because of a strike.

Advices from Washington last night quoted Navy officials as saying there was a "possibility of the Atlanta being launched Saturday" but the date has not been definitely set yet.

Fifty-eight Atlantans besides Miss Mitchell have received invitations from Colonel Frank Knox, secretary of the Navy, to attend the launching. The Atlanta will be the third United States warship of that name.

COFFEE SUBSIDY. WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—(P)—The Agriculture Department announced today it would pay a subsidy of two cents a pound on up to 14,000,000 pounds of surplus Puerto Rican coffee shipped to the United States between now and next June 30.

Experts Will Study Needs of Country, Direct Lease-Lend.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—(P)—President Roosevelt asserted today that a military mission which will go to China would direct lease-lend activities to make aid as effective as possible in the "world effort in resistance to movements of conquest by force."

He was editing a formal statement on that subject as his press conference began today, and he told reporters that probably the mission would leave for China in two weeks.

Previously the President had discussed the mission with Dr. Hu Shih, the Chinese ambassador, who was the first to announce that it would be sent to his country.

Mr. Roosevelt said the sending of the military delegation was in keeping with and along parallel lines to the projected dispatch of a similar mission to Russia.

The purposes of the missions are identical, he said, except that the Russian group will not deal with lease-lend aid. The chief executive repeatedly has stressed that the Soviet Union can pay for purchases of weapons and material.

Dr. Hu Shih indicated the mission would study Chinese needs for defense supplies from this country and perhaps help work out strategic problems arising from the war between China and Japan. It will be headed, the envoy said, by Brigadier General John Magruder.

Violent Deluge Grips N. Y. for Several Hours

Streets, Subways Cave in Like Paper Bags; Traffic Halted.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—

Streets, sidewalks, two subways and part of a railroad line caved in like paper bags tonight as the city suffered its worst transportation tie-up in history under a violent deluge that held New York in its fury for several hours.

Within an hour and a half, sheets of rain, driven by a 50-mile-an-hour wind, inundated the metropolitan area with 2.13 inches of water and plunged the mercury from 87 to 70 degrees.

The transportation tie-up, caused by the cave-ins and floods, marooned thousands of persons in all parts of the city on subway and railroad trains and was termed the "worst in the history of transportation in New York City" by William Jerome Daly, secretary of the board of transportation.

Tunnel Jammed. More than 2,000 cars, including lines of automobiles inside the tunnel, were involved in a traffic tie-up at the Holland tunnel, between New Jersey and lower New York. Police took more than an hour to unravel the tangle, after emergency squads had been summoned.

Thunder clouds moving over the lower Hudson valley, eastern New York and part of Connecticut blanketed the metropolis in midnight darkness during the dinner hour. Traffic signals and street lights failed in many sections, and motorists pulled to the curbs. A pencil peddler was killed by a bus, the driver of which told police he could not see through the rain.

Two cave-ins occurred at the Fulton street extension of the Independent division of the subway in Brooklyn. Fire leaped 100 feet high when lightning struck a 24-inch gas main broken by one of the cave-ins. A cellar wall of a two-story house nearby was blown out and flames followed the wooden planks of the subway excavation for half a block.

An automobile fell into each of the two cave-ins at Autumn and Pitkin avenues, Brooklyn. One machine was moving north on Autumn when the pavement collapsed, dropping 25 feet. The driver crawled out and was taken to Unity hospital in Brooklyn, suffering from knee injuries. T. J. Y. Conn, also of Thomasville.

Democracy Going Concern, Says Former Dane Who Heads OPM.

(The Constitution herewith presents the first of an interesting series of articles by famous naturalized Americans, telling in their own words as they contemplate the agonies of the Old World whence they came, what their American citizenship has meant to them—and how they view the destiny of the United States today in a war-torn universe.)

(These articles are digests from a new book "I Am An American," published today by Alliance Book Corporation in co-operation with the immigration service of the United States Department of Justice.)

Only democracy gives a man the opportunity to make as much or as little of himself as he wishes.

WHAT'S THIS?—This strange craft would demand a second glance even in waterfront cities which are accustomed to unusual vessels, but imagine the consternation of rural folk along the Ohio river who yesterday saw the "Gum Tree" making its way along that stream toward the Mississippi and its immediate goal, New Orleans. The "Gum Tree" is the Navy's new 150-foot net layer, just completed at Point Pleasant, W. Va.

October 1 Set For Increase In Milk Price

Atlantans Required To File Written Objections Before Hearing.

Unless Atlantans file written objections with the State Milk Control Board today or tomorrow, a one-cent-per-quart increase in the price of milk will go into effect about October 1, Charles G. Duncan, board director, said yesterday.

A proposed order providing for a one-cent increase already has been drawn by the board and a hearing set for September 5. The rules and regulations require written objections to be filed seven days before the date of the hearing.

In the event there are no protests of any kind, Duncan said the procedure would be for the board to meet and approve a regular order setting up a one-cent increase which would be advertised for 10 days before it goes into effect.

The Governor's office announced Mrs. Henry P. Russell Sr., of Thomasville, had been appointed a member of the board to succeed Mrs. J. Y. Conn, also of Thomasville.

Political Factions in County And City Draw Grand Jury Fire

Promiscuous Pardoning and 'Too Free' Suspend ed Sentences Expected To Be Criticized by Retiring Investigative Group.

Recommendation that the factions in the city police administration and the county commission wipe out their differences and work together in the future for the best interests of the community will be made by the Fulton grand jury in presentments to be returned in Fulton superior court Friday, it was understood yesterday.

It was reported the jury will hit promiscuous pardoning and also caution against judges being "too free" with suspended sentences. Likewise, the jury will report on its investigation of road projects in the county and it was understood the findings of a special committee will be that there is a great deal of road work being done in all sections of the county and that the public works department is doing a good job for the people.

The jury was told last week that Police Chief Hornsby and the council police committee headed by Alderman G. Dan Bridges are "crossed like two sticks"; that the chief asserted political interference is causing factionalism throughout the department; and that the public works department is doing a good job for the people.

CAA Will Take Traffic Control Of Airport Here

Savannah, Augusta Included in Move Effective January 1.

Air traffic control of the Atlanta, Savannah and Augusta airports will be taken over by the Civil Aeronautics Administration by January 1, 1942, Donald H. Connolly, CAA administrator, announced yesterday in Washington.

It was pointed out the CAA will assume control only where flying activities are jointly carried out now by military and civilian authorities.

Jack Gray, municipal airport manager, and among first in the nation to advocate federal aerial traffic control, lauded the move. He said the CAA will bear cost of air traffic control including equipment, maintenance and salaries of six or more men, saving the city considerable money.

In this connection, it was pointed out the city now pays approximately $9,900 yearly in salaries and $2,000 yearly for maintenance. Besides the Georgia airports, the CAA will take over traffic control of 35 other airports in the country.

Showers are again in the forecast with abnormally high temperature in prospect for the remainder of the week, the weather bureau added.

Transportation Said Available To Meet Needs

Executive Claims Trains Can Deliver Oil Here in 36 Hours.

As a senate subcommittee summoned Petroleum Coordinator Ickes to appear before it tomorrow in Washington in a probe of the eastern seaboard oil shortage, an Atlanta railroad spokesman charged that 7,354 tank cars are standing idle in railroad yards and another said "we can get you all the cars you want and deliver gas to you in Atlanta 36 hours after it leaves the oil fields."

W. L. Stanley, chief public relations officer of the Seaboard Airline Railway with offices here, who admitted that the tank cars were standing idle, also asserted that a prominent oil official at a recent investigation had admitted that rail rates are figured into the price of gasoline in setting prices, despite the fact that water transportation is cheaper.

Gas Doled Here. The senate committee's action in summoning Ickes and the railroad charges came as Atlanta service stations began doling out gasoline to customers and as hundreds throughout the east announced their tanks were running dry.

Railway Age, authoritative trade publication, reported in its July issue that there were 19,000 idle tank cars in the United States, and local railroad men said a partial survey August 12 showed 7,354 standing in yards. It was estimated that efficient use of tank cars in service and other still available means of transportation could meet the demands of practically every part of the United States.

As another move by the government, Price Administrator Leon Henderson said the government will take action within 48 hours to stabilize gasoline prices in eastern states. There have been widespread reports of actual and contemplated increases in the retail price of gasoline.

Hearing Tomorrow. Ickes, who is also defense petroleum co-ordinator, was invited to appear at the opening session tomorrow to testify about the gasoline rationing system and the reasons for it. If Ickes, who is now in the west, is unable to attend, Ralph K. Davies, acting co-ordinator, will be asked to appear.

Senator Bailey, Democrat, North Carolina, chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, set up the subcommittee to make the investigation, saying the need for such action was "immediate and imperative." Senator Maloney, Democrat, Connecticut, was named chairman of the subcommittee, and other members are Senators Barbour, Republican, New Jersey,

F. D. R. Hits 'Poison Rumors'

Falsehoods Collier Novel, 'Fire in the Sky,' Germans Warn Japanese To Beware of Split

President Says Campaign Organized To Spread Half Truths.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—(P)—President Roosevelt bluntly charged today that an organized campaign was in progress to sabotage the program of assistance to the foes of Hitlerism by spreading rumors, distortions and falsehoods.

The Chief Executive was aroused to this vigorous accusation by a press conference request for comment on reports of the misuse of lease-lend funds appropriated to finance shipments of war materials to England and China.

He asked for particulars, and a reporter said he had read that British representatives here had run up a big bill at a popular Washington restaurant.

The President smiled and said he was sure that account had not been charged to the lease-lend appropriations. Then suddenly growing stern he swung into his indictment.

Organized Campaign

It was fair to say, he said, that there could be no doubt there was an organized campaign backed by certain forces to spread rumors, half-truths, distortions and falsehoods for the purpose of sabotaging the program of aid to the opponents of Hitlerism.

The restaurant bill report, he continued, was probably a very good example. It was absurd to make general allegations because they were not true, he added, and such stories should be labeled in the newspapers for what they are.

It was only fair for the press to say that such stories were rumors, distortions, or plain dirty lies, he asserted.

Then, the chief executive said he did not want to say the position of denying these reports, that the emphasis should be elsewhere. It should be placed, he said, on the campaign to spread vicious rumors, distortions and falsehoods.

He was asked for comment on a story that some supplies sent to England under the lease-lend program had been sold elsewhere in competition with American products.

Explains Report.

This report, Mr. Roosevelt replied, originated in the fact that long before the lease-lend program began, the British had contracts for the delivery of goods to Argentina. The contracts were fulfilled, he said, and the steel delivered. It was not, he added, American steel, although at the same time, the British were obtaining steel here under the lease-lend law.

But, he added, no one in his wildest dream would say that the steel delivered to Argentina was lease-lend stuff. That sort of thing was a half-truth, Mr. Roosevelt continued, and just as bad as a whole lie.

He lumped in the same category reports mentioned at the conference that Great Britain was diverting tankers obtained from this country to commercial use.

FAMILY FINANCE PROBLEMS SOLVED BY GOOD LOANS

Money for School, Home Available Through Sound Loan Plan

Atlanta families who have been wondering where to turn to get money necessary for sending the children back to school and for buying clothes and home articles necessary during the fall and winter season have found an easy answer in the simple, business-like loan plan worked out by the Southern Security and Investment Company.

Almost anyone who has a job can get from $50.00 to $1,000.00 for worthy purposes without delay or embarrassment. Security may be a plain note, endorsement, auto, furniture, or nearly anything of value. Terms can be arranged up to 2 years and loans can usually be refinanced to provide additional cash if needed. The experts at the friendly "Southern Security" offices consider carefully the problem of each individual borrower before recommending a loan. Persons who lack ready cash for fall and winter needs are urged to take advantage of this sound solution to financial problems.

This is another in a series of advertisements explaining the simple, effective loan plan offered to the people of Atlanta by the Southern Security and Investment Company.

Person's Escape From Lot of Landless Group Depicted.

By RALPH MCGILL.
Mr. Tarleton Collier has hit the dog.

So many newspapermen are going to write novels. So very few do. When one does, it is news.

Mr. Collier has not only written a novel but has written a good novel. There will be some to call it a great novel and it may be.

Mr. Collier was for 20 years an Atlanta newspaperman, working on the old Georgian and on other newspapers. For a while he was in Washington.

He now is with the Farm Security Administration, doing a job he wishes he had been doing for 40 years. He always liked people and he always had a sociological bent. His last two years of newspaper work were devoted to writing a sociological column.

His novel is called "Fire in the Sky."

One Person's Efforts.

It is a story of the efforts of one person to escape from the lot of the landless group, 150,000 of them in Georgia, who move from year to year from one bad piece of land to another, at the economic mercy of the man for whom they work; whose children attend school seldom if at all; whose families contribute nothing to churches or to the communities, with little opportunity and less hope.

She escapes, too. And does a good job of it. She escapes, though, not without help. It is a very excellent book. You'll like the very beginning of it.

You Meet Lolly

"When the sun goes down like on that day (Lolly remembers), the sky is all fire from the bottom to up high where the clouds break and the blue is hard and cold. The bright part of the sky looks deep and flat, it stretches away from you, beyond the field and the brown cotton stalks, over the tops of the far pines, like a pond either like a rising land cropped to fire. But all of a sudden you come to the fringe of it and find that the water is looking up, not ahead, looking almost straight up, and you stumble in the road and almost fall."

That's the very first paragraph.

AUTHOR—Tarleton Collier, whose novel, "Fire in the Sky," went on sale yesterday, is a former Atlanta newspaperman now with the Farm Security Administration. His book deals with the southern scene.

It introduces you to the small child, Lolly, who has been looking up and who has stumbled. You never get away from Lolly after that.

Mr. Collier is very modest about it. He said that at Columbia, S. C., the other day, he was a speaker at a farm meeting. The gentleman who introduced him mentioned the book and stumbled around trying to remember the title, ending up with: "The author of 'Flash in the Pan.'"

It isn't, though, and you won't think so, either.

Mr. Collier's book is published by Houghton Mifflin Company, and now is on sale at Atlanta book stores. He has autographed copies.

Salesman Held Lindy Assured In Violation of He Can Speak Espionage Act In Oklahoma

Son of German Parents Charged With Sending Army Facts Abroad.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—(P)—Arrest and indictment of Kurt Frederick Ludwig, 38-year-old American-born son of German parents, on charges of sending abroad information concerning the strength of the United States Army, was announced today by United States Attorney Mathias F. Correa.

Ludwig was accused of unlawfully using the mails in violation of section 343, title 18, to send matter banned by the espionage act of 1917. Specifically, it was alleged that he sent out information on the disposition, numerical strength and equipment of the Army.

Correa said Ludwig was taken in custody Saturday by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents near Seattle, Wash.

Ludwig, a salesman who received his education in Germany, has a wife living in Germany. He resided on Fresh Pond road, in Queens, New York City.

Flogger Fails To Begin Term

Henry Cawthon, convicted flogger who was scheduled to begin serving an 18-month sentence yesterday, had not surrendered to the sheriff late yesterday afternoon, and Daniel Duke, special attorney for the solicitor general, declared he will take out a bench warrant for Cawthon this morning if he does not show up voluntarily.

Duke said he would have the county police "go out and get Cawthon" if necessary.

Cawthon, convicted of helping flog P. S. Toney in a series of whippings perpetrated by the East Point Ku Klux Klan, was sentenced to 12 months on public works and 6 months in jail. His sentence has been upheld by the court of appeals and made the order of the superior court.

Developments Find Tokyo Reweighing Position in Warring World.

TOKYO, Wednesday, Aug. 27.—(P)—The Japanese government weighed its position in the warring world anew today in the light of current developments, pondering the international situation with close attention following a warning from the German embassy to the Japanese people to beware of a British attempt to split the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo bloc.

Count Ladislaws Von Mirbach-Geldern, press attache of the German embassy, said that British Prime Minister Churchill's references to Japan in his broadcast Sunday were part of a British strategy to divide the Axis nations. "We should take care," he said, "not to play into the hands of the British plot and thus be divided and ruled."

Churchill said that Japanese military expansion and "menacing" activities in the Far East have "got to stop," and he declared the United States and Great Britain would act together in the event of trouble in the Orient.

Foreign Minister Vice-Admiral Teijiro Toyoda, who, it was learned, has been called upon by U. S. Ambassador Joseph C. Grew numerous unreported times recently, made a detailed report to the cabinet on the international situation. The cabinet, Domei said, exchanged "free and frank views."

While the government was thus debating its opportunities of the moment, the Japan Times and Advertiser in its first comment on the Churchill speech urged the democracies to renounce "past errors" on the basis of the Churchill-Roosevelt eight points.

The paper said it is disclosed that the democratic nations accept Japan's conception of her legitimate rights such as access to resources, free exchange in the co-prosperity sphere with freedom of intercourse with Far Eastern nations, meaning relaxation of Anglo-American restrictions on Far Eastern nations and groups, the Anglo-American alliance should take advantage of its opportunity.

Britain Loses One Of U. S. Destroyers

LONDON, Aug. 26.—(P)—The former United States destroyer Hopewell, renamed the Bath and manned by a Norwegian crew in the service of Britain, has been sunk, the royal Norwegian navy announced today.

The only other detail disclosed was that an unspecified number of the crew was lost. It was the first of the former U. S. destroyers to be announced as lost.

The Bath was one of the 50 U. S. destroyers taken over by the British in 1940 in exchange for bases in the British territory in the Western Hemisphere. The destroyers were renamed for American and British cities bearing the same names.

Nazi Order Dissolution Of Lodges In Belgium

BERLIN, Aug. 26.—(P)—The German military commander in Belgium decreed today immediate dissolution of all Free Mason lodges and institutions as well as similar organizations and their affiliates.

Property of such organizations was confiscated in favor of Belgium, the commentary Dienst Aus Deutschland said. It added the purpose of the decree was to "guarantee the maintenance of order" in Belgium.

At the beginning of the German occupation Free Mason lodges were closed and further activity forbidden.

E. P. Paris, general auditor of the bank, will succeed Clark as managing director of the New Orleans branch. J. E. Denmark will become general auditor and J. R. McCravy Jr., will be assigned to detached service on special duty with the branches. His first assignment will be in Jacksonville.

Formerly a vice president of the bank, Clark has been with the institution 23 years. He will have charge of the bank examinations department and foreign funds control.

Paris has also had 23 years service with the bank in various departments. The new general auditor, Denmark, formerly was connected with the State Banking Department, and has had several years' service in the examinations department of the Federal Reserve Bank. He is secretary of the Atlanta conference.

New German-Italian Army Move Forecast

ROME, Aug. 26.—(P)—Virginio Gayda, the Fascist editor, forecast a new move by the German and Italian armies today, but did not say where it would be.

Some Axis observers privately scouted the likelihood of an attempt to reach the British army in Iran but foreign observers were not so sure.

Gayda said the "solidarity between the two peoples and the two armies is destined to have new, outstanding expressions and new developments."

New 35,000-Ton Ship Is Ready for Britain

LONDON, Aug. 26.—(P)—Great Britain's newest battleship, the 35,000-ton Duke of York, was reported ready today to take her place alongside her sister ships, the King George V and the Prince of Wales.

Shipyard men were reported working in day and night shifts to complete arming the giant of the sea. Her sister ships carry 10 14-inch guns, 16 5.25-inch guns, four multiple pompons and several smaller guns. Each carries four aircraft and one catapult.

Air Warning Maneuvers May Be Delayed

Failure To Obtain Quota of Volunteers Cited as Reason.

Fall Army maneuvers in the aircraft warning service will be delayed unless the various filter centers obtain their quota of volunteers by September 1, Mrs. Trammell Scott, in charge of organization work in the Atlanta area, said yesterday.

Only 145 so far have volunteered, Mrs. Scott said, in pointing out that Atlanta's quota is 350.

The aircraft warning service is a part of the State Defense Corps of Georgia. It also comes directly under the office of civilian defense, headed by Mayor LaGuardia, of New York.

Mrs. Scott, in appealing for more volunteers, urges clubs, churches and other organizations to urge individuals to join the corps. A registration office is maintained at 203 Chamber of Commerce building, and it is open daily from 8:30 in the morning until 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Drafted FOR THE DURATION OF THE TERM

Shakespeare's schoolboy "creeping like snail unwillingly to school" was a pretty natural product of the school systems of his day. But what a difference today! The finest school systems in the world make education so interesting that most children beg to go back. Fine, understanding teachers make lessons so dramatic that pupils love to learn. (The little Draftee in the picture just looks glum because he's enlisting for the first time and doesn't know how much fun he's going to have!) Arithmetic is easy when you buy things in a make-believe store. History is exciting when Mary and Johnny and Joe play-act it for the class. And school-clothes, bright-as-birds, make the land of chalk-and-blackboards as gay as a party. That's where Davison's comes in. We're ready for your Draftees with imaginative, up-to-the-minute school clothes that keep pace with Atlanta's progressive schools. Smart, confident First-Day clothes in which they'll sign up happily "for the duration."

Simple Form of Income Tax Return Approved by Senate Group

Man Who Makes Under $3,000 Gets a Break

Total Estimated Revenue Passes $3,500,000,000 Asked by Morgenthau.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—(AP)—A simplified form for filing income tax returns for the millions of persons who make $3,000 or less a year was approved today by the Senate Finance Committee.

The committee also raised slightly the house-approved income tax rates for corporations with annual incomes of $25,000 or less a year, increased federal taxes on wines and brandies, and accepted numerous provisions of the house measure.

Chairman George, Democrat, Georgia, said that Treasury experts were not certain of the amount added to the bill by the committee today, but indicated that the total estimated revenue would exceed the $3,500,000,000 asked by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau to help pay mounting defense costs.

Morgenthau had asked for the simplified form as a means of eliminating headaches for small wage earners, many of whom will be called upon to pay income taxes for the first time.

7,000,000 Added. An estimated 7,000,000 persons were added to the federal income tax rolls yesterday when the committee lowered exemptions from $800 to $750 a year for single persons and from $2,000 to $1,500 for married persons. This means that a single person earning $15 a week and a married man earning $29 must file returns for the first time.

The simplified form would eliminate the present complicated report of deductions for earned income, interest payments, contributions and other taxes. Instead, those earning less than $3,000 a year could merely compute their earnings, consult a graduated chart on the back of the return, and then fill in the amount of tax to be paid.

This system, Treasury experts said, would save much work for both the government and the taxpayers.

The corporation tax increases were only fractional, and were estimated to raise an additional $3,200,000 annually. Authorities said they involved "smoothing out" of normal corporation levies.

For example, a corporation with an income of $5,000 or less now faces a 13.5 per cent normal tax plus defense tax of 10 per cent of this, or 14.85 per cent. The Senate Committee voted to make this a flat 15 per cent.

George said the committee also would approve the alternate methods for computing corporation taxes voted by the house. One of these involves use of invested capital, the other average annual earnings. The Treasury has consistently advocated the former method alone.

Gasoline Tax Stands. The committee rejected a proposal to boost the federal tax on gasoline from 11-2 cents a gallon voted by the house to two cents.

The following increases were ordered on wages: Not more than 14 per cent alcohol, present law 6

PRETTY AND PERT—Georgia's hopes in the national bathing beauty contest to be held next month in Atlantic City will be pinned on this beauty, Bette Shepard, of Griffin, who won the title of "Miss Georgia" this week at Savannah. other car was parked when the second cave-in occurred, 70 feet away from the first.

Fire headquarters disclosed that 179 alarms were sounded between 6 and 8 p. m., and 235 telephone calls received requesting help in pumping water out of flooded cellars in houses and business buildings.

The New York Telephone Company reported that 5,600 telephones throughout the city and in Nassau and Suffolk counties were put out of service during the storm.

Service on all subway lines except the Fulton street extension and the Queens-Brooklyn cross-town line of the Independent division was resumed at 10 p. m. (E. S. T.), four and a half hours after the storm broke. A temporary tie-up was caused on the Pelham Bay line of the Interborough Rapid Transit in the Bronx when flood waters caused a short circuit that started a fire in the third rail.

The section of the subway where the cave-in occurred had been under construction the last two years, Daly said. Another cave-in was reported in the Long Island Railroad line a few blocks away. The third cave-in was of a stairway under construction in a subway station in Queens.

cents a gallon, house bill 8 cents, Senate Committee 10 cents; from 14 to 21 per cent alcohol, present law 14 cents, house 24, senate 35; from 21 to 24 per cent alcohol, present 30, house 50, senate 65.

The committee approved a rate of 7 cents a half pint on sparkling wines, compared with 4 cents voted by the house. The rate on carbonated sparkling wines was raised to 31-2 cents a half pint from 21-4 voted by the house.

The tax on brandies was increased to $4 a gallon and the same rate was approved for all distilled liquors. The house had approved a $3.75 rate for brandies and $4 for other distilled liquors.

The committee approved house action in increasing the excise taxes on rubber tires and tubes to double existing rates, and on safe deposit boxes from 11 to 20 per cent.

Big Oil Reservoirs Seen for Athens

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. ATHENS, Ga., Aug. 26.—Athens will soon become the reservoir for northeast Georgia's gasoline.

A huge gasoline storage terminal will be established here by the Plantation Pipe Lines, it has been learned, with that of Standard Oil alone to be of 5,000,000 gallon capacity. Shell Oil Company will also have a terminal here, of approximately the same capacity.

The reservoir will be located on the Athens-Jefferson road, just outside the city limits. The 1,200-mile long pipe line will probably be completed in December, according to Ralph Davies, of the Oil Co-ordinator's office, who said Tuesday establishment of the right of eminent domain would hasten the construction of the line and relieve the gasoline shortage along the eastern seaboard.

Jury Launches Probe of S. C. Divorces Here

Residents of Neighboring State Suspected of Perjury.

By FRANK DRAKE. An investigation of an alleged racket whereby residents of South Carolina have obtained divorces in the Fulton domestic relations court by posing as residents of this county has been launched by Solicitor General John A. Boykin, it was learned yesterday.

Evidence against at least three men and women has been obtained by Assistant Solicitor C. E. Presley, and bills of indictment charging perjury will be submitted to the Fulton grand jury soon, it was said.

At the same time Judge Paul S. Etheridge Sr., who is to preside over domestic relations court next session when it opens September 8, announced that henceforth the state, through the solicitor general's office, is going to take part in undefended divorce cases and see that all laws of Georgia regarding divorces are complied with in these uncontested cases.

Evidence that some residents of South Carolina, the number not being known as yet, have sworn they lived in Fulton county in order to obtain divorces here was turned up first by J. H. Bush, deputy clerk of superior court, who handles domestic relations court.

7,354 Idle Tank Cars Reported In Rail Yards

Burton, Republican, Ohio, Radcliffe, Democrat, Maryland, and O'Daniel, Democrat, Texas.

The full committee also approved a resolution by Maloney providing for a more extensive, "full dress" investigation of the whole petroleum situation. However, the resolution calls for an appropriation, and this will have to await later action by the senate.

Besides Ickes, or Davies, the subcommittee also will question other officials, producers and transportation executives. Maloney said the move for an investigation had "done some good already," referring to assurance that the gasoline supply would be adequate for the Labor Day weekend.

Davies issued this statement on the investigation: "We welcome this opportunity to present the facts of the situation. It will serve as a means for enlightening the public as to the conditions we face."

Relief Predicted. Meanwhile, President Roosevelt predicted that the shortage would be alleviated substantially by spring. He told a press conference there were two reasons: That a lot more tankers would be launched and put into commission on the assumption that sinkings in the Atlantic—and that two pipe lines probably would be in operation to the Atlantic seaboard by spring.

The statement by Stanley came after Councilman Joe Allen, of the second ward, had made public a statement declaring there is no gas shortage at the southern lines, and that he will introduce an ordinance in council at its next meeting to repeal the recently passed ordinance prohibiting sale of gas on Sundays and at night.

"I have just returned from Texas," Allen said. "There is no shortage there. In fact one oil official told me there is more gasoline in reserve there than ever before."

Inquiries at railroad offices throughout the city brought the information that there is practically no increase in the demand for tank cars since the rationing of gas to the eastern seaboard got under way.

Railroad officials pointed out there is an inland waterway running along the gulf coast from the oil fields, and that barges, carrying from 50,000 to 70,000 gallons of gas are hauled through this waterway to Birmingham, by way of the Warrior river.

Short Haul to Atlanta. "That leaves an inland haul of only 165 miles," one railroad man said.

He pointed out that these barges are not seagoing vessels, and that there is no shortage of them. Meanwhile, developments in Atlanta's gasoline situation came thick and fast.

Approximately 30 local independent gas dealers attempted to obtain an injunction prohibiting city officials from enforcing the service station closing law.

Superior Judge Paul S. Etheridge, in refusing to sign their petition, issued an order for a hearing tomorrow on the injunction obtained by the Tank Oil Car Company. He said he will ask Judges John D. Humphries and Virlyn D. Moore to sit with him at the hearing.

The petition by the independent dealers was presented to the court by the law firm of Powell, Goldstein, Frazer and Murphy. In refusing their injunction, Judge Etheridge told the petitioners that the ruling in the Tank Oil Car Company case will govern them as well.

New Expansion In Shipbuilding Is Announced

Goal of Two Vessels a Day Set for 1942-43.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—(AP)—Another expansion in the country's shipbuilding program with a view to turning out two ships a day in 1942 and 1943 was announced today by the Maritime Commission.

Within a few hours after President Roosevelt had signed a bill providing $1,698,650,000 in cash and contract authorizations for ships and shipbuilding facilities, the commission reported that it had negotiated for the construction of 23 additional ways and 66 freighters of the "C" design.

Expansion of other existing yards, the commission said, will be authorized as rapidly as practicable. The bill, the commission stated, will make possible the production of 566 additional merchant ships. Previously the commission had authorized the construction of 710 vessels, of which 100 have been delivered.

New ways, averaging about $1,000,000 per way, including the necessary shore, equipment and machinery, were authorized as follows:

South Portland Shipbuilding Company, South Portland, Me.; Bethlehem Steel Company, Sparrows Point, Md.; Alabama Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company, Mobile; Ingalls Shipbuilding Company, Pascagoula, Miss.; Delta Shipbuilding Company, New Orleans; Consolidated Steel Corporation, Los Angeles; Richmond Shipbuilding Corporation, Richmond, Cal., 3.

'Taxi' Smith at Capitol To Talk With Governor

J. W. (Taxi) Smith, of Albany, former secretary-treasurer of the State Highway Board, paid a visit to the capitol yesterday to confer with the Governor and his former associates in the Highway Department.

Smith, who resigned his highway post to resume his law practice in Albany, laughingly remarked that he "would have been half crazy by now" if he had stayed with the highway job. He pointed out that one of the principal disadvantages of a political job is the constant stream of patrons who want something.

The Army IN GEORGIA

"Side orders of corn willie and beans are on the house, Buddy—doing my bit for defense, you know."

His parachute failed to open . . . At least one of his parachutes did. So Private Benjamin F. Mourey, after falling free two-thirds of the way from plane to ground, pulled the rip cord of his emergency chest pack parachute and landed safely.

Private Mourey was one of a group of 48 parachutists in the recently activated 502nd Parachute Battalion at Fort Benning to make their fifth and final jumps for qualification during the visit yesterday of the House Military Affairs Committee at the Army post.

Representative R. Ewing Thompson, Democrat, of Texas, chairman of the committee, presented Mourey his silver qualification badge and complimented him on his courage and clear-headedness.

Officials at the post explained that Mourey was one of only six parachutists to have trouble with the back pack parachute, which is rigged to open automatically when the jumper is 14 feet from his plane, in more than 6,000 jumps.

"As a composite military post, Fort Benning is the best in the country," Congressman Thompson told post officials after inspection of the cantonment areas. The committee visited Benning with a view to preventing excessive cost in the construction of future buildings at other Army posts.

Clothing Expert Urges Standard Sizes for Army

Major Christie Says Closer Inspection Is Necessary.

The ancient problem of pants with two left legs held the attention of the Southern Garment Manufacturers Association here yesterday as Major George P. Christie Jr., of the Philadelphia Quartermaster Depot, discussed the situation from the Army's point of view.

"When a soldier is seen wearing pants three sizes too large, or pants with one leg shorter than the other, the Quartermaster Depot gets the blame," said Major Christie.

"But the fault really lies with careless inspection at the factory. Often this careless inspection can be traced to untrained boys and girls. To prevent this sort of thing, textile men should treat the Army the same way they treat their other customers."

Not All Inspected. Major Christie, who is general superintendent of manufacturers and clothing designer at the Philadelphia depot, explained further that only 10 per cent of the clothes which pass through the Quartermaster Depot are inspected and for this reason mistakes often will not be discovered until garments reach Army camps for distribution to the soldiers.

Major Christie also outlined 15 steps necessary for conversion of the textile industry from commercial to military manufacture, placing emphasis on the point that manufacturers should not "bite off more than they can chew," arguing that such procedure not only slows up clothing the Army but also means huge financial losses to the haphazard bidder on Army contracts.

Resolutions recommending closer co-operation between government and textile men on the subject of priorities, the standardization of clothing measurements, and calling for a priority rating of A-10 or better on overalls and other clothes worn by workers in the nation's factories were passed unanimously by the association.

Pleased With Work. Major John P. Baum, of the Quartermaster general's office in Washington, said the Army was pleased with the work shown by textile men had been doing in furnishing 11,000,000 khaki shirts and pairs of pants for the Army.

He regretted that definite information about the future demands of the Army could not be made at this time, saying "the future depends upon the seriousness and continuance of the national emergency."

The procedure of obtaining an Army contract, the meaning of new restrictions on the textile industry and the removal of old ones were discussed by Captain Albert Dennis, of the contracting officer's office of the Philadelphia Quartermaster Depot.

He said the urgency of the situation has made direct contracts with certain manufacturers, without the usual procedure of open bids, a necessity in certain cases, but that the Quartermaster Depot preferred, where possible, to receive bids from responsible companies in order that the most value might be obtained from each taxpayer's dollar.

William J. Vereen was re-elected president of the association. Ben Wilkins, Lee Hays and George H. Barnes were elected, respectively, as secretary and treasurer, chairman of the board, and vice-president, at the recommendation of the nominating committee appointed by Vereen.

British Control Most Iran Oil In Swift Drive

The Ukraine front told of the substantial destruction of two German tank divisions and the rout of a Rumanian Guards division. As to the Iranian theater, the most important occupations made by the British—and they made heavy use of air-borne troops to seize communications and secure them at comparatively little cost—were of pipeline heads.

Captured were the line stretching from the Masjud-i-Sulaiman oil field; its great refinery at Abadan at the head of the Persian gulf, which processes 200,000 to 300,000 barrels a day, or enough to supply the whole British navy; and another pipeline, 400 miles to the north at Naft-I-Shah.

Indian Troops Successful. The Abadan prize was seized by Indian troops pushing northward beyond the port of Bandar Shahpur; Naft-I-Shah by Imperial troops thrusting across the Iraq frontier and also taking the Iranian town of Qasr-I-Shirin.

The fall of Bandar Shahpur gave the British control of the southern terminus of the trans-Iranian railroad which leads to the capital of Teheran, and also of the southern end of one of two major highways. The other highway was commanded by British troops in the Naft-I-Shah vicinity.

Iranian resistance under both British and Russian accounts was slight, and delayed dispatches from Teheran disclosed that even after the invasion had begun the government had continued conversations with British and Russian representatives, thus suggesting the possibility of capitulation without much more opposition.

Nazis Report Resistance. The Berlin wireless, however, broadcast an Iranian communique reporting that Iranian troops "are on several points putting up resistance and have succeeded in holding the enemy advance."

Whatever the facts were as between these two versions it was plain that the successful conclusion of the allied campaign could not in any case be long delayed. The Germans intimated that they were in consultation with the Iranians, but Berlin described as a mere trial balloon reports that the Reich had offered help against the Anglo-Russian allies.

RUSSIAN, IRANIAN RELATIONS UNBROKEN

Front, Rear Marks Ordered on Tags

The Governor yesterday issued an executive order intended to prevent duplicate automobile license tags being split, with one placed on one car and the other on another.

Georgia's red-white-and-blue 1942 tags, under the order, must have the word "front" embossed on one and the word "rear" on the second in each set.

The Governor said he had received evidence that persons buying automobile tags had used one plate on one car and the second on another car and then claimed that the missing tag had been lost or stolen. He estimated this had cost the state $20,000 a year in revenue.

Enemy Bomber Is Shot Down, Iranians Say

Advance Being Held Up, According to German Radio Report.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—(P)—The German radio heard here tonight broadcast an Iranian communique saying that at several points the Shah's troops were "putting up resistance and have succeeded in holding the enemy advance."

The communique: "On August 25 Soviet troops crossed the frontier into Iran from the north and British troops from the west and southwest."

"Several towns were bombed and considerable damage done to residential quarters and casualties among the civilian population were caused. No objectives of military importance were hit."

"An enemy bomber was shot down by Iranian anti-aircraft artillery over Tabriz."

"The Soviet fleet proceeded from the Caspian sea and the British from the Persian Gulf towards the Iranian coast."

"Iranian troops are on several points putting up resistance and have succeeded in holding the enemy advance."

"The population of all parts of the country is determined to defend the Fatherland and many men are reporting to recruiting officers."

Airdromes Raided By British Planes

LONDON, Aug. 26.—(P)—New high-speed, twin-motored Whirlwind fighters joined Spitfires in attacking an airdrome near Cherbourg, shipping off the French coast and an airdrome in Belgium today, the air ministry news service reported.

A number of bombers on the Nazi field were set afire and several Messerschmitts shot up, it added, saying that "the attack was such a surprise to the enemy that not a single fighter was encountered in the air by our forces."

A later authoritative announcement said German shipping was attacked off the Dutch and German coasts as well as the French and that first reports showed two German ships sunk and others hit. RAF night raiders, taking up where the day shift left off, heavily assaulted the French coast opposite Dover tonight.

The sound of the outbound planes was followed by intense anti-aircraft fire from Nazi batteries along the French coastline from Boulogne to Calais.

TWO PLANES DOWNED, GERMANS ANNOUNCE

BERLIN, Aug. 26.—(P)—DNB said two British fighters—one Hurricane and one Spitfire—were downed today in what it called an unsuccessful RAF attack on the French coastal zone.

'Like To See U. S. In,' Says Beaverbrook

No Slowdown Noted in American Production, Briton Asserts.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—(P)—Lord Beaverbrook, British minister of supply who recently returned from conferences in Washington, declared today that the United States was in the full swing of production and that there had been no slowdown since Germany invaded Russia.

Asked at a press conference if the United States was near to entry into the war, Beaverbrook replied that such a decision was the business of the people of the United States.

"What do you think?" reporters persisted. "I'd like to see them in," he said, lifting his voice.

Then, repeating this statement, he said: "It's nobody's business other than citizens of the United States, but if I am not to be hypocritical I'd like to see them in now."

He commented that there was no need for tank modernization in the United States. "They have fine light tanks in the M-3," he said, adding that U. S. tanks are arriving in Britain "in considerable numbers."

"I feel no pessimism about increasing United States production," he asserted. "Of American airplanes he said, 'they are just as fine as any product in this country or any other country.'"

Tobacco Sales Near 1940 Total

Late, but still incomplete reports to the State Department of Agriculture yesterday increased the number of pounds of tobacco sold at Georgia markets this season to 53,189,966.

The department said receipts were $10,877,587.01, for an average price of 20.48 cents a pound. Last year 79,246,276 pounds were sold at Georgia markets for $12,360,574.26, or an average of 15.60 cents.

Still missing were reports from one warehouse at Vidalia and another at Waycross, but figures available from these markets were included in the totals announced today. The department said the warehousemen unreported already had left for the Carolinas.

Final figures were announced for Blackshear and Statesboro, previously unreported. At the former 5,060,106 pounds were sold for $1,017,569.76, while at the latter 2,651,372 pounds were sold for $531,130.70.

Douglas County Farmers Deny Poison Charge

Admit, However, Rustling 16 Head of Cattle From Victim.

A charge of attempted murder by calcium arsenate poisoning, brought yesterday against two Douglas county farmers, resulted in a denial of the charges, but they freely admitted having rustled 16 head of cattle from the poison victim, removing them from his barn one by one in the back seat of a passenger automobile.

The accused men were listed as Dewey Webb, 26, and Henry Hunter, 31.

Sheriff Mac Abercrombie and Deputy F. E. Waldrop arrested the pair after Grover Clark, 50, was found seriously ill at his bachelor farm house Friday by neighbors.

Clark told officers he became ill Thursday night after a meal of cornbread and sweet milk. Tests of the food, made by the State Health Department at the request of the sheriff, revealed a large amount of calcium arsenate.

Clark was treated at Grady hospital, and later returned to Douglas county to help officers look for Webb and Hunter.

Both the accused men denied any knowledge of the poisoning, although Hunter admitted disposing of some calcium arsenate in an old well at the request of Webb.

Webb explained that they "shoved" the cows into the back seat of the automobile, one by one, after removing the seat.

They said they sold the cows at various places between Douglasville and Carrollton, obtaining about $250 for them. Deputy Sheriff Waldrop said two of the allegedly stolen animals had been recovered.

Webb and Hunter were held in default of $6,000 bond each. $1,000 on the attempted murder charge and $5,000 on the larceny charge.

34-Cent Minimum Set for 'Brickmen'

A wage order establishing a minimum wage of 34 cents an hour for the manufacture of bricks and other fired clay products goes into effect September 1, Regional Director J. R. McLeod, of the Wage-Hour Division, said yesterday.

Approximately 3,900 workers in 14 southern states will receive increases under the new minimum, which does not cover the manufacture of refractories, potters and ceramic whiteware.

Administrator Philip B. Fleming also announced yesterday approval of the men's shirts, single pants and allied garments wage order requiring payment of at least 40 cents an hour to all employers except learners.

Harry Poole Resigns Planning Board Post

Harry Poole, member of the city planning commission since its reorganization the first of the year, yesterday tendered his resignation to Mayor LeCraw, and the mayor immediately offered the vacant post to Ernest Miller, prominent real estate man.

Poole said pressure of business precluded his continued service and asked to be relieved immediately. The mayor said he had known Miller for many years and that his knowledge of realty values would make him a valuable member of the commission. He expressed regret at Poole's decision.

Bowen Refuses To Resign

Charles J. Bowen, 75, city inspector of buildings for 21 years, yesterday refused to comply with a demand for his resignation made about two weeks ago by Mayor LeCraw and said he will continue to serve "as long as the people of Atlanta elect me and I have my health."

Bowen has been a city employee since 1904, and under the city pension system is entitled to retire on a pension of $100 a month after 25 years' service.

To Make It Easier

The impact of the defense program will come with particular force to a segment of the American people until now little concerned, directly, with the cost of government, the senate finance committee having recommended a reduction in exemptions from $2,000 to $1,500 for married persons and from $800 to $750 for single individuals.

It must seriously be questioned whether the lowered exemptions will produce enough new funds to compensate for additional collection costs, but they are, nevertheless, wise from the standpoint that they will bring probably 7,000,000 more persons into intimate contact with the cost of government. These persons have, of course, been paying the so-called hidden taxes for many years, but have made no direct contribution to national government costs. That they now must dig down to pay direct income tax should have a salutary effect, perhaps not during the war but inevitably in the years following.

The expenditures of the national government have increased steadily in the past 20 years. Increased costs have been necessary, and more possibly will be required in the years following the termination of the present emergency. But the fact that income tax payments will be required of a greater percentage of the population should operate against heavy "pork barrel" appropriations; against wastage through inefficient functioning of some departments, and against treasury "raids" by special groups.

The reduction of exemptions inevitably raises another question, that of collection. For the lowering of the bars means not only that more persons will pay, but that those in the middle-income brackets will find their tax bill greatly increased and the problem of payment complicated. It would seem only the better part of wisdom and justice for the senate committee to at least examine the possibility of setting up alternate provisions for payment of taxes, either through a withholding at source provision where desired or through more readily purchasable units of tax anticipation warrants. Because the hardest-hit group paying the tax will be that which finds it most difficult to find the necessary funds at the proper time. Some such system would reduce the governmental costs of collection, which it is understood ran to a very high percentage of the increased revenue in the last lowering of exemptions, and ease the burden upon taxpayers brought under the necessity of paying income taxes.

The lowering of exemptions is a good and sound move. But some feasible means of collection other than the present ponderous and complicated system must be found.

Francis Biddle

The fifty-eighth attorney general of the United States will be Francis Biddle, of Philadelphia. The first attorney general of the United States was Edmond Randolph. Four generations separate the two men, yet their kinship is a link in the history of this land, a symbolic link in that they come to high office in the service of the country at a time of strife. For Edmond Randolph was the great-grandfather of the newly nominated Francis Biddle.

The appointment of an attorney general in time of war—or threatened war, depending upon the viewpoint—should be examined with particular care. From the standpoint of civil rights and their maintenance, the attorney general is one of the most vital members of the cabinet. He must be jealous of the prerogative of civil law over military law. He must be particularly mindful of the stresses which sway the judicial processes in time of conflict. Too weak-willed, he may cause untold harm. Too strong-willed, he may cause irreparable damage.

The selection of Mr. Biddle to fill this important cabinet post at this time appears particularly fortunate. He is a keen student of the law, a former private secretary to the late Oliver Wendell Holmes, and a brilliant practicing attorney. His family background is one of long service to the country.

There should be little, if any, delay in the confirmation by the senate of his appointment.

A Meaning To Everybody

The forests mean something to everybody, and what they mean to all of the people will be told during the next two months by forest officials in a special exhibition train that will visit 58 towns in six states—small towns, where the people live near the woods and where the story of good forest conservation needs most to be told.

The train is a concrete expression of a sound educational idea. It was the "brain child" of Joseph C. Kircher, regional forester; Clint Davis, his educational supervisor, and Charles Gilett, industrial forester for the Seaboard Air Line Railway. The train left Atlanta this week, making as its first stop on its 4,500-mile tour the city of Clinton, S. C. The itinerary will take the train from Virginia to Florida, through the two Carolinas, and the states of Georgia and Alabama.

The train is jointly sponsored by the United States Forestry Service, the Forestry Extension Service, and the forestry departments of the states through which it will pass. It was made available to them by the Seaboard railroad. All who had a hand in making possible this worthwhile dramatization of what the forests mean to all the people are to be commended and congratulated.

It is a solemn thought that in many parts of Europe today one can be shot at dawn for listening to a weeping wife on the American radio.

The Lesson From the War Games

Two veteran war correspondents, reporting from two different Army maneuvers, this week both touched upon the same subject for criticism of the current war games.

Both of these men, veterans of the United Press foreign service, are worried because of the fact American troops do not have enough blank ammunition to accustom them to the noise of battle. One reported that only two rounds of blanks daily were issued the troops in the field and commented that American dive bombing was relatively noiseless when compared with the siren-equipped Nazi planes.

When it is recalled that the sheer noise of dive bombing broke Parisian divisions of the French army in the Sedan break-through, the importance of this criticism is starkly highlighted.

The terrific stresses of modern combat require that troops be inured to the impact of weapons used in combat. This can only be accomplished through the use of blank ammunition, and realistic simulation of other noises which might panic or confuse the troops.

That both these men saw fit to comment on the subject should be warning to the country that here is one phase of Army training that should be given some immediate attention and quick correction if it is in any way possible.

The high seas meeting of Roosevelt, Churchill and others was easily the dramatic high spot of the season. It had everything except LaGuardia pulling up at the last moment in a fireboat.

Latest victim of the war of nerves is bombed Berlin, not knowing whether the RAF that passed was Royal or Russian.

We don't know about these new gaseous outgivings, but Vichy's product in the old days was naturally carbonated.

Georgia Editors Say:

AMERICA'S DEFENDER.

(From The Brunswick News.)

Who has been the better defender of America—Roosevelt, who tried to stifle the beginning of Hitler's war and called upon others to help him from 1935 up until the very day when the war actually began, or the Wheelers, the Nyes, the Lindberghs, the Hoovers, and the other Roosevelt critics, who struck down Roosevelt's hand with their criticism every time he dared to raise it in that holy cause of peace?

Who has been the better defender of America—Roosevelt, who began in 1935 to build a greater navy to lie around American shores, or Senator Wheeler, who opposed him?

Who has been the better defender of America—Roosevelt, who tried to put weapons in the hands of those who stood before Hitler, or Senators Wheeler and Nye and their allies, who opposed him?

Where would America be today if she had followed the counsel of these critics, instead of the leadership of her President, who has dedicated his life to keeping both Hitler and war from our fair land?

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WE ARE MOST POWERFUL STATE WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Prime Minister Churchill's reference to the United States in his Sunday broadcast as "the most powerful state and community in the world" gives recognition to the true stature this country has grown in the past few generations, which too few Americans themselves have come to appreciate.

Except for some broad comprehension of the position of leadership we occupy in various fields of commercial endeavor, it is doubtful whether the average American has more than a vague conception of the full measure of greatness we have reached as a world power.

Most of our ideas of national greatness have been founded, for the most part, on no more substance than the nebulous claims of politicians who, in campaign years, are wont to proclaim that this or that state is the greatest in the country, depending on where they are speaking, just as it is customary for all presidential candidates to describe, in a similar vein, the United States as the greatest nation on earth.

Whether all of them felt themselves free of excusable exaggeration is doubtful, but the presidential candidates have been making an accurate appraisal of the situation for some years. At what stage of our national development we reached the pinnacle on which Mr. Churchill now places us is difficult to say. It is a question for the historians and the economists to decide.

SYMBOL OF AMERICAN GREATNESS The significant fact is, as the British Prime Minister acknowledges, that we have arrived there. Certainly we have been given that sort of recognition, though reluctantly in some foreign quarters, ever since the last World War, when our forces, economic and otherwise, were marshaled to prove the deciding factor in that conflict. Potentially we had arrived before then.

Even the depression years failed to lower our position, although the loss of world markets and the slowing down of our huge industrial machine caused dire prophecies to be made of our decline. We came out of the depression in better shape than any other world power, just as we emerged from the last World War far better than any other nation.

The symbol of American greatness is found in the position of world pre-eminence we hold in practically every field of activity, except naval and military power. Until now we have not considered the necessity strong enough to develop our resources in this direction.

The United States has accumulated more wealth than any other nation on the globe. It is reflected in the fact that we have actually in the country some 80 per cent of the world's physical supply of gold. We have the highest standard of living of any nation, labor is paid more, and the average man regards as incidents necessities the things which are looked on as luxuries in foreign lands. There are more raw materials here, more resources, more surplus, agricultural and industrial, than may be found in any nation of first-rank importance.

A LAND OF PLENTY We have more automobiles, more food, more telephones, more radios, more miles of electric transmission lines, more homes with electricity, more railroads, more airlines, more improved highways, more gold, more factories, and a dozen other items that enter into the daily lives of the people and form an important part in the domestic economy of a country.

In some of the items, startling as it may seem, we have more than the rest of the world combined. No less important, because we are better fed and have a great expanse of country in which to live, we have the healthiest and, on the whole, the most developed people physically than perhaps any other great nation.

And we have been the main source of world inventive genius for a half century at least. With very few exceptions, all of the principal inventions of the world during the past ten decades and more have come from this country—the automobile, the airplane, the telephone, electric lights and moving pictures. Most of the modern war devices now being used in Europe, machine guns and the like, found their origin here.

Only in total available man power and a national culture, not yet developed because of our comparatively short history, are we short of any other world power. But no one asserts that our deficiency in either of these respects diminishes our capacity for maintaining the heights to which we have risen.

What we are lacking in trained military forces and naval power to uphold our position is being corrected in the national defense effort now under way. The program is designed to give us a naval force that not only will be the strongest in the world, but superior to that of any combination of nations that might be brought against us.

There are some of the things which must have been running through Prime Minister Churchill's mind as he prepared the notes for his Sunday speech acknowledging the top rank the United States has come to occupy among the nations of the world.

It undoubtedly explained a large measure of his buoyant air in being able to relate the closer degree of collaboration between the British and the United States arising from his conference with President Roosevelt and his recognition of the potential power we are able to wield in the war.

BEWARE OF TRAITORS.

Editor, Constitution: America, in its own way, helping bring the world to the crisis that it is in today. In the after years of the war, the explanation of the confirmed pacifists and the person who insisted, especially after the rise of Hitler, that the United States needed an adequate Army and Navy for its own protection, was indignantly shouted down as a bloody war monger. Finally as the dictators demanded, and were given, more and more, a few people began to "wake up." Then came the war. As horrified eyes watched Hitler's march of destruction sweep through one country after another, more and more Rip Van Winkles opened their eyes and became once more sane, intelligent citizens who comprehended the seriousness of the situation that they were facing.

Today, most citizens are wide awake to the peril. Our President has declared that an unlimited national emergency exists and has called for speedy arms production and all-out aid to those opposing aggression. Most citizens have realized the importance of these measures and what they mean to their own security and are co-operating fully with the President. But there yet remains a group of people who have violently opposed all measures taken by our government and who have fought every step it has taken to prepare the defense of our nation. They have divided diplomatic and military secrets, thus making themselves traitors. They have placed their own petty, personal dislikes and desires above the welfare of their fellow citizens.

A great many of them are evidently being paid by the enemy for paid larger light bills. This seems to be what the oil companies had in mind when they spoke of a terrible loss to be paid for by a pocket of gold.

These men MUST be stopped! They are traitors that do not hesitate to betray. They are cowards for they would cheat and deceive rather than fight as men should fight.

Public scorn will wither them because they are cowards. Ignoring their carefully planned propaganda will check them because they cannot spread their lies and hate if none will listen. But most of all, our nerve and determination will destroy them for they cannot break down the defense wall of American courage and fortitude by their lies and subterfuge.

We must stand steadfast against them for they are attempting to destroy the ideals for which our forefathers worked and fought and died—ideals of freedom for which we, too, would gladly give our lives that they might forever brighten the paths of God-fearing Americans.

MARY LOUISE HASTINGS, Atlanta.

FEELS THEY ARE TAKING ADVANTAGE Editor, Constitution: We note in the news that "Gasoline Men Propose Increase in Price Here."

We recall that the oil moguls, while running around over the state advocating pipe lines, promised that if allowed to build such lines the price of gasoline and oil to the consumer would be reduced.

The fact is that they had no intention of saving the consumer anything then, nor have they now. What they want is for the government to give them permission to construct pipe lines over the entire country in order that they might more completely monopolize and control the nation's oil supply, even as to its transportation.

Anyone with a little imagination and common horse sense can see that the only thing the oil trust is interested in is more profits for themselves. We clearly see that in the fact that, because our government sees fit to conserve our gas and oil resources for the emergency by asking the co-operation of motorists in eliminating needless waste of gas and oil for mere pleasure, they have taken advantage of the "scarcity scare" to run up the price.

All of which reminds us of the performance of the power companies during the recent blackout. Many customers complained that while they had burned less current during the blackout, they paid larger light bills. This seems to be what the oil companies had in mind when they spoke of a terrible loss to be paid for by a pocket of gold.

These men MUST be stopped! They are traitors that do not hesitate to betray. They are cowards for they would cheat and deceive rather than fight as men should fight.

Public scorn will wither them because they are cowards. Ignoring their carefully planned propaganda will check them because they cannot spread their lies and hate if none will listen. But most of all, our nerve and determination will destroy them for they cannot break down the defense wall of American courage and fortitude by their lies and subterfuge.

We must stand steadfast against them for they are attempting to destroy the ideals for which our forefathers worked and fought and died—ideals of freedom for which we, too, would gladly give our lives that they might forever brighten the paths of God-fearing Americans.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

The opinions expressed by Mr. Pegler in this column are his own and do not necessarily represent the opinion of The Atlanta Constitution.

No Defense Necessary

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—O. U. Hat friend, Hendrik Willem Van Loon, comes lumbering to the defense of his wounded comrade, Clifton Fadiman, the killing clever pundit of the air, the screen, and the printed page. But just what Mr. Van Loon defends him against I am unable to say. Mr. Van Loon, who calls himself a student of abnormal psychology, declares that I recently attempted to assassinate his comrade's character. I would be the last to deny that Mr. Van Loon is a student of abnormal psychology, for he has had inviting opportunities to pursue his studies in the circle of his acquaintance and in the realm of his inquisition. Any man so obsessed would be bored by normal men and normal men, in turn, find themselves ill-at-ease, or in a word, ill, in the presence of abnormalities. Now that Mr. Van Loon mentions it, I realize that this could have been why I have always felt a robust aversion to this moist and buxom continental with his lacy mannerisms and his flouncing furies. The normal man simply cannot interest himself in the repulsiveness of abnormality, so I am utterly ignorant of Van Loon's specialty and rather glad of it.

Possibly this boast of Van Loon's explains why he resents as character-assassination the simple presentation in print of some political sentiments which his comrade, Fadiman, wrote for the Communist publication, the Masses. To the normal mind, a man's professed beliefs are his privilege and his boast. You do not charge a man with his professed beliefs, but Van Loon, his mind dwelling on the abnormal, seems to hold that there is something shameful in Mr. Fadiman's principles noisily declared in a Communist company in a Communist publication, and that it is vicious to take him at his word.

Presents Credo

In presenting Fadiman's credo, which to me was incoherent, I did not suggest that it was a confession of guilt. I assumed that he would maintain his faith in it and put him back to himself and asked him if he recognized these sentiments and remembered who wrote them. Before I published this memoir, however, I telephoned Mr. Fadiman to invite his comment. His reply was that he had written this declaration quite a long time back and that he did not know that the New Masses intended to publish it under a heading which committed the contributors to Communism.

For what it was worth, in the judgment of the readers, I presented his explanation, remembering, however, for myself, that the non-Communist takes all the risk in believing any disavowal of recantation by anyone who knowingly and willfully associates with Communists. There is a countenance of cats known as fellow-travelers which runs with the Communists and observes their social and moral forms but lives on better fare.

The Fellow Travellers

But I am sure Mr. Van Loon would not call his comrade a fellow-traveler, for they are held in contempt by Communists and non-Communists alike as a flinching, mincing lot who lack the courage to join the party and run like hares from the Red-baiters. I did not attempt to classify Mr. Van Loon's comrade, therefore, but just presented his own declaration. The explanation is a flinching, mincing lot who lack the courage to join the party and run like hares from the Red-baiters. I did not attempt to classify Mr. Van Loon's comrade, therefore, but just presented his own declaration. The explanation is a flinching, mincing lot who lack the courage to join the party and run like hares from the Red-baiters.

I am afraid I can't allow Mr. Fadiman to recant as glibly as he tried to do, for my authority for this position is Mr. Fadiman himself in an essay published only last week. Discussing a new book by Dr. Hermann Rauschning, the blacklisted Nazi, entitled "The Conservative Revolution," Mr. Fadiman coolly rejects Rauschning's statement that he really didn't mean it when he was practicing Hitlerism in Germany.

"Suppose, Dr. Rauschning," he writes, sternly, "we stop being subtle and nonphilosophic and state a simple fact or two. It would seem to most people that anybody who is familiar with Hitler's speeches (as you must have been) was aware that his central appeal lay in an inflammatory invitation to murder a helpless minority." He then holds his bauchling irrevocably bound by his earlier choice and I now find Van Loon accusing me of character assassination in applying Fadiman's own rule to Fadiman, himself.

But surely Van Loon dishonors his comrade by this defense, for he craves an indulgence that his pundit friend bitterly withholds from another. And he argues that his friend's declared beliefs were somewhat despicable which is a hell of a way to treat a comrade. Van Loon, out of his knowledge of the abnormal, suggests that in my youth I may have wished to be a policeman or a writer. I believe that is what the abnormalists call the field of suppressed desire and the fact is that I did have a longing to be a ball player. I suppose Van Loon, too, may have wished to be something else, say a milliner, or a nurse.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL.

"FIRE IN THE SKY" Tardelton Collier was briefly in our town yesterday. He has written a novel and to anger, I will eat the first half of it. The second half I liked, too, but it was the first half which stirred me.

Those who know Collier at all know he would have something sociological in this, and any other novel he may write.

He tells the story of the Georgia sharecropper better than anyone else has ever told it. He tells it without any false emotional qualities, but with no propaganda intent as did Steinbeck in "Grapes of Wrath." He just tells it as it is. He does not emphasize their poverty or their lack with a pointing finger. They just live through the pages and they get in the mind. I hope there will be none to say this is just another novel about Georgia's sharecroppers. This is a novel about people, about one family, and, finally, about one girl. And her daughter.

It is not at all a "Tobacco Road" book and that is one reason why I hope it will be read by many thousands of people. "Tobacco Road" was true enough. Erskine Caldwell took one more or less isolated community and wrote a book which was stark and horrible. It was true, though, and don't let anyone tell you it wasn't. Nor should you listen to those who would tell you it was overdrawn.

It was, though, not a story about a whole people. Collier's book is about the 150,000 people in Georgia who sharecrop. It is about those who have no tenure on the land. It is the story of those who move on each year, from one shack to another, from one landlord to another, always on the ceaseless, helpless hunt for something better.

It is the story of people who have good "stock" in them. Now and then it will show itself despite its handicaps. Collier is trying to tell their story and trying to say that there is a great asset which could be recovered and used for the betterment of the world in which they retain it. There is a very good reason why they seem, and often are, shiftless and lazy.

The novel is called "Fire in the Sky," and I think it will be heard from. I think you will like to read about Lolly and finally, about Lolly and her baby.

THE FSA There is a story about the book in the paper today. Collier himself is, after 20 years of newspapering and one year off to write the book, with the Farm Security Administration. He likes it. It gives him a chance to do the work he always wanted to do.

He is working to help the people he wrote about in "Fire in the Sky." He can tell you a story about "The May Chicks." The Farm Security Administration put out more than 100,000 of the chickens—sold them, to be exact.

There is a superstition about "May chicks." It is that no May chicks will live. The superstition grew out of the fact so many of the May chicks died of the mites and later of the linnet. Not even liberal treatments with lard and coal oil would kill those mites.

The chicks were placed and the share farmers and small owners would not have to raise them, keeping them off the ground and protected from rats and foxes and keeping their quarters clean. The chickens are growing and several thousand dollars in cash has been added to the income of these people.

The FSA is one of the very finest of the New Deal agencies. It is behind the project at Pine Mountain. It now sees there, due to the co-operation of Tap Bennett, the director, the beginning of the real plan. There was never the intent to spend money on a few hundred chickens taken off relief rolls and put back on the land. There was the idea of rehabilitating them and, as they developed, to assist adjoining communities. That is happening now with the opening of the big canning plant which will run eight months in the year and which will use up vegetables and fruits not merely from Pine Mountain but from other sections. Because of Pine Mountain other things will come in to increase the county income. It took a few years to get it started. The critics of the New Deal act as though the plans attempted should work immediately or be called failures.

In Green county there are a number of FSA projects which are "paying out." The record of repayments on farm purchase loans is simply astounding.

There are many, many fine people among that 150,000 landless, hopeless people who are being rehabilitated. All they ever needed was the chance.

THE HOTEL BUSINESS Lolly, the girl in his book, got a job as desk clerk at a small hotel. Somewhere Mr. Collier learned a lot about the hotel business. I want, sometime, to ask him where.

When he was a newspaperman in Atlanta, the sports writing crowd used to visit Mr. Max Abelson, who was brother of Jake Abelson, the champion boxer of some years ago. Mr. Abelson was owner and manager of the late lamented Wilmot hotel, gone now for some years and replaced by another building. It was headquarters for prize fighters, wrestlers and small-time theatrical people, not to mention others of another, and older, profession. The Striplings used to take a suite there when W. L. was in for a fight and the prize fighters used to take a room there, leaning against the walls like gargoyles. On occasion, I have encountered Mr. Collier there at some festive meeting of the Striplings. But it never occurred to me he was picking up information about the hotel business. I must ask him the next time I see him.

At any rate, Lolly does a good job and she wins her battle for herself and her daughter.

You may not like some of Mr. Collier's ideas, but you will, I am sure, like his book.

The Wolf May Put on Sheep's Clothing, But He Never Discards His Fangs

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

America is a part of Christendom. It is classed as one of the Christian nations. According to the last available census, the number of professing Christians in all denominations is 50,572,346. Of these, 18,605,003 are Catholics.

But this does not mean that 50 million of our people are deeply concerned about the welfare of Christianity. There are many like the father of the little girl who said: "My dad is a Methodist, but he don't work at it much." And there are others who are loyal only in the sense that they have chosen a particular church to stay away from.

A recent news story told about a number of young prisoners in Chicago, all brought up by devout parents and probably included in the count of Christians, who knew nothing whatever about the teachings of religion.

Their attitude, typical of their kind, was expressed by one, who said: "Sure, I've heard about God, but I don't go for that church stuff."

So an illiterate hill-billy would say: "Sure, I've heard about geometry and geology, but what does a he-man care about that tripe?"

Vanity reconciles us to ignorance by making unknown things seem unimportant.

It is conceded that many classed as Christians have little or no interest in religion. The question now is whether the others have interest enough to make themselves a factor in shaping the future of civilization.

Since Hitler launched his attack on Russia, and began to picture himself as the savior of Christianity, some American Christians have changed their opinion about him. It is a dangerous error.

Stalin is a beast and the enemy of all that Christianity stands for, but this is equally true of Hitler. Given a choice between two evils, our only wise course is to choose the lesser. If Stalin survives, he cannot conquer the world or end human freedom. If Hitler conquers Russia, he may conquer the world.

Hitler is trying to use Christians as his tool, and he has used many others, but he is still the implacable foe of any religion that teaches equality and freedom and dignity of man.

If Christians would save their religion, they must oppose him to the end, no matter what the cost.

OFF THE RECORD—By Ed Reed

"Oh, good! Here comes a fourth!"

Dudley Glass

I have just been released from incarceration in a lockup, though for a time I feared I'd be reported to the Lost and Not Found Department—and some day somebody, wandering around our building, would discover my emaciated corp stretched upon the floor and indications I'd chewed up what was left of the paste.

My sanctum, which is quite cozy and comfortable, and especially, vice because neither bill collectors nor reekie vendors can find me, is entered through a door leading from the large photographic studio of Mr. Rogers and his associates. That's the only way. This entrance is supposed to be an exit. It really is. But not always.

Mr. Rogers or one of his satellites is occasionally called upon to take a picture of a group of young ladies in fancy costume. They do not wear these costumes in the streets because there are ordinances against attracting attention without a permit and thus obstructing traffic, which is quite a good idea.

So the photographer involved—and all of them are singularly different to the female form divine, having used up so many plates on the beaches and at swimming pools—ushers the fair subjects into the studio, points out the large mirror and retires until called for.

My invasion of the inner sanctum raised a problem. The door into the studio is nearly always open, to provide air. Besides, I like to watch pretty women posing for pictures, even if they're wearing tailored suits and furs. Sometimes no cameraman is available. All six of them are elsewhere. On several occasions an impatient subject, who has an engagement at 11:15, waits until 11:25 and asks whether I can't take the picture and let her keep a date in front of a movie.

No Camera Expert.

It is my regret that my education was sadly neglected along photographic lines. I've shot pictures with all kinds of cameras from the 95-cent type to a $40 "box" containing a $150 fast lens (borrowed from his wasn't there). I'm pretty sure I followed the book. But I was so intent on triggers and flash bulbs and timing I neglected my aim. I once got a swell negative of a girl feeding peanuts to an elephant but it was confined to the hindquarters of the elephant, which are nothing to look at if you ask me. The picture editor agreed with me on that.

So, because I am sometimes requested to make this picture and get it over with, I have developed a gag which I hope to sell to a Hollywood director. I don't think it's so torrid, but it will measure up to a lot of them I see and hear on the films. If Hollywood doesn't fall there's always the radio. Does anybody know Jack Benny's present address?

I ought not to spring this gag before it's protected by copyright—but—ha!—I can't resist. Not long ago I found a pair of large pliers—oversized pliers—lying around where some thief might easily steal them, so I borrowed them and hid them safely away in my desk drawer in case the owner should come around and inquire.

And when a beautiful lady insists I take her picture—get set, now, here comes the gag—I say: "No, ma'am, but I strive to please." And then I show her the pliers and say:

"But I'll be glad to pull a tooth for you."

The response, I'll confess, has been inadequate. I'm convinced of the truth of the adage that women have no sense of humor.

But here I am, doddering around like a drunken motorist on a midnight detour in the rain or Locked Up! For the Duration—Fortunate Escape From Cell.

Alexander Woolcott relating an anecdote. I know you are all impatient to learn all about my being locked up—and I don't want any dirty back cracks out of any of you, either. This is my column and my story. So mail them to the New Yorker.

What I started out to say was that when I am working slavishly in my retreat and a group of Mr. Rogers' subjects desires to put on something less he peers in at me and remarks: "If you don't mind, I'll close this door for a few minutes."

I don't think it would matter much because I'm kinder near-sighted and well beyond the draft age. But I was beyond the draft age in the first World War. But Kenneth is a modest soul and somewhat temperamental.

So he closes the door and shoots the picture while I wonder whether the girls are as beautiful as all southern girls are labeled in the etchings—though sometimes one wonders if the cut cap-tives hadn't got slightly mixed. And after a while they change back into street garb and go out—and Kenneth opens my door.

But he missed out the other day. Perhaps his models distracted his mind. He forgot my door has a spring lock—opening only from his side. He forgot I was in here. He forgot I was alive. Or perhaps didn't care a cuss.

I decided after long last that the photographic seance certainly was over. I hadn't heard any giggles, and I hadn't heard any. I was hungry and out of cigarettes. I turned the door knob. No soap! And no hope!

I have no phone in my den (and no complaints about that) and everybody on the floor had apparently gone to lunch. A voice responded. It was a telephone messenger boy, seeking upon the sixth floor, as is their wont, an address who has helped occupy the first floor some 27 years ago next Groundhog Day. With his name on his door. But the lad was welcome. He turned the knob, the portal opened wide, and I felt once more the breath of air from the great open spaces of Mr. Rogers' studio.

He explained afterward that he'd merely stepped outside for a second and had received an assignment to hurry up to Asheville, N. C., and my incarceration had temporarily slipped his mind. If the boss has any intention of assigning Mr. Rogers to a North Pole expedition I hope he'll lend me an ax. Or a rope ladder which will reach six stories.

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

AMERICA, WAKE UP!

You may remember that I said in yesterday's column that I had intended to write about something else until the wind turned the pages of a magazine on my table, and my eyes happened to fall upon that cartoon by Kirby (New York Post). What I was going to write about yesterday I forgot. I went back and got out one I had filed that she wrote some days ago about Winston Churchill in which she said, quoting Churchill: "I am nothing," he said. "But the people—have you seen the people? Do not bother about the bigwig. Talk to the people. They suffer so, and never a whimper. They suffer so for this stupid war that never would have happened if we had not been so blind; this war that should have been over before we fought, and that now must be fought through to the end. . . . An Englishman's home—it is a fine phrase. It was never so fine a reality. No one can govern England again who forgets the people. They deserve to win gloriously." America, wake up!

I read Dorothy Thompson's great article on the front page of The Constitution last Saturday morning, and its stays with me. Think of those women working in steel mills 11 hours a day, six days a week! And you remember what the manager of one of the mills said to Dorothy Thompson as she watched those women? "We ought to have three eight-hour shifts, but Britain is short of manpower. We are fighting an enemy with the human resources of a continent to draw on."

And do you remember this sentence? "The heat sears our faces as a young woman in blue overalls adjusts a lever and a piston covered with carbundum slides in and out of a blue-steel gun barrel, leaving the interior brilliant as a mirror." And this one: "Girls glance up from their work and smile at the visitor and look again with steady watching eyes."

And this paragraph: "Wages will not buy food beyond the rations allowed. One egg per week, very little meat, plenty of vegetables now, but no cream or butter, only a little margarine. How do they stand it? The answer is that they stand it with remarkable spirits, health and efficiency. Why? Because of their morale. This morale is due to the following factors: Patriotism and the fact that no private owners or stockholders are making profits, so the people are working for the whole community; intelligent organization with emphasis always on the human element may well be considered a psychological factor; continual intercourse between management and workers, and the sympathetic interest in their well-

Leaders Map Program for Cotton Uses

$500,000 Promotion Campaign Favored by Textile Body.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Aug. 26.—(P)—A long-term research and consumption promotion program to cost around $500,000 was approved here today by governors of the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association, in special session, in a move to gird the industry against anticipated post-war deflationary tendencies.

After the meeting, W. N. Banks, of Grantville, Ga., the association's president, said the program "bids fair to become the greatest forward step in the industry's history for its stabilization and advancement and unquestionably is the most important movement for promotion of the research in cotton manufacture and of cotton consumption."

Banks said the program was developed through the co-operation of the National Cotton Council and the Cotton Textile Institute. Members of the governing board expressed the expectation that the spending of around $500,000 for research and consumption promotion would arouse related activities which it was hoped ultimately would result in an annual consumption by American manufacturers of about 10,000,000 bales of domestic cotton.

The plan provided that approval should also be given by 90 per cent of the "flat" cotton consumers and by an equal percentage of the compressed cotton industry as represented by the shippers. Association officials said they understood this approval had been given.

Discussions today also included such topics as price ceilings, priorities, taxation, protective federal legislation, and the role of federal agencies handling national defense orders.

Power To Be Increased 60,000 Kilowatts Here

Sixty thousand additional kilowatts of electric power will probably start flowing about September 5 through wires of the Georgia Power Company as an increased supply of power for Atlanta and adjacent territory.

The current will be generated at the addition to Plant Atkinson, a steam turbine generating plant located near Bolton. In announcing that the plant virtually is completed, officials of the Georgia Power Company said no future power curtailment is expected because of the new addition to their steam generating plant.

Group Hears Linder Explain Value of Farmers' Market.

By HAROLD MARTIN.

Two hundred Kiwanians yesterday found out that Fulton county is a farming county—the fourth biggest farming county in the state.

Three busloads of city slickers got away from their usual program of after-dinner speakers to take a conducted tour of the Fulton hinterlands where the corn grows tall and the beef cattle fat.

Under the leadership of County Agent Sid Truitt, the party went first to the new farmers' market, where Commissioner of Agriculture Tom Linder, surrounded by tomatoes, peaches, roasting ears, watermelons and peanuts, told them that $50,000 worth of farm products moved through the market daily—and still it was only half as big as it should have been.

He told how the great 15-acre market area had been erected in less than nine months at a cost of $400,000, one of the most modern establishments of its kind in the south.

He explained how the telephone service kept farmers abreast of market conditions throughout the state, and said that it would be expanded to include direct lines to all the great eastern markets, so that the Georgia farmer could have the benefit of the latest up-to-the-minute market information.

In addition, he said, the next step contemplated by the Department of Agriculture will be the establishment of packing and grading centers, so that Georgia farm produce can command the highest possible prices.

Guernsey Herd Viewed.

From the farmers' market the tour progressed to the Fulton county dairy farm near Adamsville, where the group saw one of the state's finest Guernsey herds, developed by Fulton county in the past five years. Milk and butter from the farm supply the almshouse, the juvenile detention home and the infirmary wards of the prison camps.

At the dairy farm the party was served a barbecue prepared by Mrs. Truitt and by W. M. Cook, superintendent of the county farm. Frank W. Fitch, extension dairyman of the Georgia State College of Agriculture, spoke on dairying development in the county, and O. E. Sell, of the state experiment station at Griffin, talked about pasture development.

Corn Field Observed.

From the county farm the tour, conceived by Huber Parsons and Bonner Spearman, of the Kiwanis Club, went to Hughes Spalding's farm on the Chattahoochee, where a mile-long corn field and a herd of 200 fat Herefords were observed. Next stop was at the farm of Lee Mabry, 4-H Club boy, who is going in for pure-bred cattle and pigs.

Other stops were at the farms of Cliff Westbrook, another raiser of pure-bred cattle; George Abercrombie, another 4-H Club farm that is developing a Guernsey herd; W. D. Rucker, cotton, corn, and soybean raiser; and E. L. Rhodes, R. H. Mansell and L. M. Thomas, who latter all farms raising both cattle, corn and cotton, and at Mike Benton's place on Roswell road, where the group observed fields of lespedeza and O'oto-Tan beans.

Massey Speaks.

Other speakers were Z. R. Massey, beef cattle expert of the experiment station at Griffin, and E. D. Alexander, of Athens, agronomist and authority on pastures.

Truitt told the group that there are 5,382 landowners and tenants owning and operating 2,952 farms in Fulton county, with 80,000 acres of land in cultivation.

There are 1,509 boys in 23 4-H Clubs, specializing in growing better corn, cotton, pigs, peanuts, poultry, grains, beef and dairy cattle and sheep. Twelve are interested in quail raising to restock depleted game areas.

4-H Projects.

More than 2,000 4-H Club girls are working on projects ranging from canning and clothes-making to landscaping their home grounds. Nearly 500 adults take part in the 13 home demonstration clubs, and community canning plants are in operation at Oree Crabapple Road and Hapt's Rest.

The group also visited the Al-phe-tta Mattress and Comfort project, one of two mattress-making centers where, under the direction of the county agent's office, 3,452 mattresses and 618 comforters were made last year. The others are at Fairburn.

Record of Dade Former 'Bug Prison Camp Man' Is Again Warden Lauded Indicted Here

Ousted C. A. Jacobson Praised by Highway Chairman.

Chairman W. E. Wilburn, of the State Highway Board, yesterday praised the record of C. A. Jacobson, who was ousted by the prison and parole commission as warden of the Dade county highway camp after he placed 22 Negro prisoners in a sweatbox and kept them for eight hours.

"I have known this man for a long time and I have never found anything wrong with him," the chairman said after conferring with Jacobson. "I always believe in sticking by my friends."

Asked if Jacobson would be placed in another job in the State Highway Department, Wilburn said he did not believe in "speculating on what might happen."

So far, he said, Jacobson had not applied for a job.

Wilburn said, however, that C. B. Smith, division engineer at Gainesville, had requested that Jacobson be allowed to remain with the department. Wilburn said Smith made this request because he recognized the former warden's ability.

Records in the auditing office of the Highway Department showed that Jacobson went off the payroll August 14.

Henry Shorter One of 20 Who Got Suspended Sentences.

Henry F. Shorter, former "bug man" who was one of the 20 lottery big shots who got five-year suspended sentences in Fulton superior court in 1937, was indicted for lottery again yesterday by the Fulton grand jury.

The true bill charged that Shorter was operating a lottery in Fulton county on September 26, 1939, but that this information did not come to the jury's attention until August 23, 1941.

Only witness against Shorter, who court officials said had obtained a pardon from Governor Rivers from the five-year suspended sentence, was Tony Pappas, who was one of several who received conditional pardons from Governor Rivers only to have the pardon nullified when they failed to pay the fines upon which the pardons were conditioned.

Pappas is now under a 12-month sentence for lottery but is out under an appeal bond, Bond Almond, solicitor of the criminal court of Fulton county said.

Pappas testified before the jury he was working for Shorter in the lottery business on the date he was arrested, September 26, 1939, it was said.

Solicitor General John A. Boykin asserted that the evidence against Shorter by Pappas turned up in the course of "routine investigation."

The jury also indicted George A. Fretwell on a felony charge, he obtained a total of $497.80 from the Bank of Fulton County with a counterfeit draft signed "C. A. Tidwell."

Mort Cooper pitched seven-hit ball to whip the Dodgers in the nightcap. The only run off him came in the eighth inning, when Dolph Camilli blasted his 27th homer of the year out of the ball-

The Cards scored their three runs in the fifth on a combination of timely hitting off fat Freddy Fitzsimmons and a pair of fumbles by Pee-Wee Reese. The shortstop made errors on the first two fielding plays of the game to put runners on first and third. Cooper then brought a run home on a fly, and, after Jimmy Brown singled,

The Cards scored another run in the top of the ninth on an infield hit by Frank Crespi, a sacrifice and Cooper's two-bagger, but the tally didn't count since the game was called before the frame ended. A sudden storm came up and made the field so dark photographers along the first-base foul line had to use flash bulbs for their picture-making.

Curt Davis pitched seven-hit ball to give Brooklyn the victory in the opener. The Dodgers landed on four Cardinal elbows, starting with Lefty Max Lanier, for a dozen hits, including homers by Davis, himself, and Camilli.

SPRINGVILLE, N. Y., Aug. 26.—(AP)—Glenn S. (Pop) Warner, one of football's greatest coaches, has mapped his schedule for the coming campaign—he says he's going to watch three games a week and forget about coaching.

After 46 years in the business, during which time he directed the football destinies of Jim Thorpe and the Carlisle Indians, Interviewed here in his old home town, Warner said he had severed his connection with San Jose State in California, where he had been serving in an advisory capacity, and planned to do his coaching from the grandstand from now on.

"I've often wondered how it would feel to sit in the stands and see the other fellow having the headaches," he said, "and now I'm going to find out. I plan to take in three games a week."

However, Warner indicated he still might consider another coaching job if the right offer came along.

"I am getting old," he commented, "but I'd like to coach a good football team."

"I'd like to prove the double wing attack is the best system in football. There are a lot of coaches using the double wing at

The Secret of the Marshbanks

Cherry Gets a Job in a Summer Camp; Tells the Judge of Amy's Suspicion

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.—Charlotte (Cherry) Rawlings, an orphan at Saint Dorothea's convent school since she was seven, knows almost nothing of her early history but has gradually realized that like other girls at the school she has no family. She questions whether she has the right to her father's name. Judge Judson Marshbank and Emma Haskell, housekeeper for wealthy Mrs. Porteous Porter in San Francisco, are her guardians. When Cherry is 20, Emma gets her a secretarial job with Mrs. Porter, but she goes to Marshbank mansion, meeting the judge's young wife, Fran, and his niece, Amy, daughter of his brother, Fred. Cherry's life at Mrs. Porter's becomes monotonous. Coates, an artist, sends her a box of candy and she is jealous when he brings Fran to a party at Mrs. Porter's. Cherry tells the judge that her sister, Charlotte, is along with Fran. Cherry visits his studio and Cherry senses that he is very much in love with Fran but soon he tells Cherry that she will not see him any more. Mrs. Porter dies, leaving Cherry $1,500, and she learns from Marshbank that the other brother, Fred, now dead, who was Amy's father, was also her father. Cherry goes to Stanford University and lives with the Pringles. Fran asks her to be Kelly's friend, saying he likes her, and she decides to do the honorable thing and avoid him. Kelly goes to Palo Alto and asks Cherry to marry him although Fran will always be the "unattainable woman." Her answer is no; she wants no Fran in the background.

INSTALLMENT XXI

"Cherry, you've got me all wrong!" he began distressedly. But she only said good-bye again, and walked away down the orchard. After a minute or two he got into the car and drove away. Cherry walked briskly home, and was in time to help Rebecca get supper for the family and for the inevitable Sunday night guests. Afterward they played a game, and then stood singing around the piano for an hour. It was nearly ten o'clock when somebody remembered Monday's classes, and the group broke up. Rebecca came into Cherry's room a little later to find her in bed, fountain pen in hand, studying away busily, making notes. "Listen," said Rebecca, "here's something to think about. Mrs. Williams wants to go with me to the girls' camp in June." "Visit?" Cherry asked, her eyes brightening. "Visit nothing. Job. You'd get eighty a month." "You mean help you manage the camp?" "Or else I help you." Rebecca was always serene; she looked now at a red apple, bit into it thoughtfully. "If Mrs. Williams really wants me, I'll go," Cherry said. Just a week later Cherry sat opposite the judge in his comfortable chambers, the early summer sunlight battering at the window blinds, the hum of the great courthouse proceeding impressively all about. "It seems to me that you look extraordinarily well," said the judge. "You're not going to turn into a handsome woman on us, are you?" "I'm doing my best. I ought to look well. I'm having the time of my life!" "It's a success, then? You relieve my mind. I was afraid this appointment meant that something was going wrong." "Everything's going only too right. I wish I could live with the Pringles forever." His kindly eyes smiled at her. "Then it's the summer plan—the camp at Big Basin—you wanted to see me about?" "No, not unless you object. Beck and I can't wait to pack. We go next Tuesday, and the girls begin to come in Saturday." "Then what was the trouble, Cherry? Your letter said 'trouble'?" "It's this. Amy came down to see me Wednesday. I didn't know she was going to. She wanted to tell me all about the trip and this Navy ensign she's so crazy about." "Yes, but why look so distressed about that? You like Amy?" "I do like Amy. Amy's my—of course we're pretty closely related, Amy and I. But one thing is—one thing is that your mother doesn't like me to see Amy too much. She asked me—she practically asked me—not to come to the house any more." A shadow came over the genial face; the judge's forehead contracted a little. "My mother did?" "Yes. She said it wasn't—decent." "Hm!" he judge said, gravely enough. "I'm sorry she did that. You know how much we all like you, and what reason I have for feeling that I've something to make up to you. Fran was saying only a day or two ago that you'd forgotten us." "I'll never forget you! But there's more to it than that. Amy came in while your mother was talking to me. I'd reached the house before Amy did, and I was in my room reading, and your mother came in and said how much she resented my being there."

"How much did Amy hear?" "Well, your mother had just said that it didn't break off all my relationships there, she'd have to let everyone know, and Amy, too, that we were half-sisters. And I said that that meant injuring the reputation of her own son! Amy heard that." "And guessed the rest?" "Guessed that it was you, instead of your brother Fred. After your mother had gone Amy said that she always had suspected that I was—Cherry's throat thickened, she looked at his imploringly, "that I was your daughter."

"I see," he said, thoughtfully. "I didn't contradict her—I couldn't say anything. I kept trying to think which would be worse, telling her, or letting it go and talking some day to you."

"Fran and I were in Los Angeles then?"

"Yes. And then I went to Palo Alto and didn't see you, and I knew that your mother cared more about keeping it from Amy than anything else, and I hoped that Amy wouldn't talk. But now Amy's back, and she wants me to come in to spend the night with her next Saturday, and go to the Quatre Arts ball, and I don't know what to do."

"My mother's a proud woman. Cherry," the judge said, after a silence. "She's had a sad life. My father's illness ended her social interests, after 20 years in which her position had been everything any woman wants—big house, opera box, jewels, Europe."

Two years later my young married sister died in childbirth, and that embittered her. She's never been the same. The baby died, too; it was a crushing blow to my mother. I was away at the time; Fred was married, and she was a good deal alone with my invalid father. She had quenched it here in San Francisco, she seemed to have nothing left. Fred's wife was heiress to all this money Amy'll have, but she was a delicate girl and years went by and there was no child. Fred was restless and unhappy and altogether things weren't in any too good shape when I decided to give up Washington and come home. "My mother had been living in an apartment hotel and hating it. Fred and his wife, Amelia, had a little place in Burlingame. But after years, five or six years, I think, she was going to have a baby, and everyone was anxious that this time it should go right. Old Wellington, her father, was an immensely rich man; he was going to come on from New York for the event, and do everything for the baby. Fred, who'd been restless and unsatisfied, settled down all of a sudden. Mother had opened the city house by this time, and they were all together. The baby was coming in November—" "I know. I'm four days older than Amy," Cherry, listening absently, put in as he paused. "But you came two months too soon. That's all part of the story. Well! My wife and I and little Gregg got here just a week or two before Amy was born, and what we learned was rather confusing. It seems that Emma's sister, Charlotte Rawlings—much younger than she—was sometimes at the house, and that Fred had seen this girl, and had taken advantage of her. Emma knew nothing of it until almost the end when Lottie came to her and told her."

Rubinfoff To Play on Treasury Hour; Melton Also Is Star.

Eddie Cantor, banjo-eyed comedian of stage, screen and radio, whose career spans the years between World War I and World War II, moves into the CBS "Treasury Hour—Millions For Defense" program tonight as master of ceremonies of another star-spangled salvo. (WGST handles at 8 o'clock.)

Topping the array of co-stars are Tenor James Melton, screen-dom's Priscilla Lane, radio's Elliott Lewis and the well-remembered Rubinfoff and his violin.

Arch Oboler has written a play, "Brainstorm," which presents Miss Lane and Elliott Lewis as a man and woman who have it in their power to stop war by sacrificing one of their possessions.

James Melton and Baritone Barry Wood, with Ray, Blois's chorus, offer the vocal music. Al Goodman and his orchestra play. The "Songs of America" spot features Rubinfoff and the vocal stars in melodies of Russia.

Earle McGill directs the hour, donated to the United States Treasury Department by the Texas Company to aid the sale of defense bonds and stamps.

Kathryn Witwer, soprano, and Michael Wilkomirski, concert master of the WGN orchestra, will share musical honors tonight over WATL from 9 to 9:30 p. m. on the Mutual network's "Pageant of Melody." Miss Witwer's solo selection will be Moszkowsky's "Springtime of Love." She joins Wilkomirski, violinist, in "Ave Maria" from Massenet's "Thais."

The concert orchestra under the baton of Henry Weber will be featured in three numbers: Excerpts from Rameau's "Dardanus Suite," Stravinsky's "Berceuse" from the "Fire Bird Suite" and the "Capriccio Espagnole" by Rimsky Korsakov.

Jack White, Pat Harrington and Frankie Hyers, the three zanies whose antics have convulsed thousands at New York's famous Club 18, entertain Columbia network listeners tonight in a variety program entitled, "Free For All." This program will be heard over WGST at 6:30 p. m.

Joan Edwards, rhythm singer, joins in the fun and sings several popular tunes. Ray Block's orchestra also is heard. Al Rinker, of the CBS staff, directs.

Brigadier General James A. Ulio, chief of the morale branch of the United States Army, will have an opportunity to inspect the Quiz Kids first hand and to comment on his inspection as the guest observer for the broadcast tonight at 7 p. m. over the NBC-Blue network and WAGA.

University of California specialists have just announced that one cow will save a family $100 a year in dairy products.

Many of the letters which Gracie Allen receives from men in the service in response to her "Dear Willie" letters to the soldiers are loaded with laughs which could provide the basis for comedy routines on the forthcoming Burns and Allen series via NBC.

Gracie has too much regard for the intent and spirit of the letters to make them "public domain." Gracie actually receives more than 200 such letters weekly.

Ed Sullivan's "Silver Theater Summer Show" is one of the few top-flight variety programs broadcast minus any studio audience. It originates in the CBS New York studios and the only visitors allowed are family and friends of the guest stars and the program's "regulars." Will Bradley and his orchestra, Sullivan and Announcer Harry von Zell.

Joseph Julian, the New York radio actor known to "Big Sister" listeners for his role as "Michael West," retains the part in the new weekday drama, "Bright Horizon" via CBS. "Bright Horizon" is the lowest of series and made the central figure in a drama of its own.

17,000 Swarm Atlantan Asks Back to Jobs Priorities for In Shipyard Defense Homes

Kearny Workers Seeking To Make Up Time Lost During Strike.

KEARNY, N. J., Aug. 26.—(P)—Nearly 17,000 workers swarmed into the Federal Shipbuilding & Drydock Company plant today and set armor plate clanking and rivet guns chattering once more on a $493,000,000 defense construction program.

As a symbol of their renewed zeal, many expressed hope for early launching of the cruiser Atlanta, scheduled for August 9 but delayed by a 19-day CIO strike.

Rear Admiral Harold G. Bowen, new boss of the vast plant taken over Sunday by the Navy Department on order of President Roosevelt, said launching of the warship was one of the first problems to be decided. Other officials said it was not known if the launching would be private or public. Margaret Mitchell, author, was to have been the sponsor.

Admiral Bowen said the men were "working enthusiastically and will attempt to make up for lost time."

He said he could not comment on an offer by L. K. Korndorff, president of Federal, to sell the whole business to the government, and referred such queries to the Navy Department at Washington.

Admiral Bowen, in press conferences today and yesterday, left the impression the Navy planned to keep possession of the yard at least for the duration of the emergency.

OLD DOMINION LINE OF THE EASTERN STEAMSHIP LINES

Atlantan, 24, Is Radio Voice Of Canal Zone

'Bill' Verner to Be Emcee on NBC Program With His General.

By PAUL JONES.

If young "Bill" Verner, former Atlanta radio station announcer, was in the German Army instead of Uncle Sam's Artillery, he would rate the title of Goebbels' first assistant or something of the like, but since Bill is working for Uncle Sam, he is satisfied with the title of "Voice" for about 30,000 artillerymen in the Panama Canal Zone.

William E. Verner, better known as "Bill" to all the folks in radio here, will be accorded one of the highest honors ever bestowed upon a private in the Army Friday night when he serves as master of ceremonies on an NBC-Blue network program which will originate from the Canal Zone and which will feature great artists in the entertainment field as well as the "Bligs" in military.

The "honor" being that Bill, a private, will appear on the same program with the commanding general, something which never has occurred before.

Bill, who was with DATL during his broadcasting days here, first broke into radio when he won a competitive audition for network announcer over the Columbia station, WJSV in Washington, D. C. After serving as network announcer for this station for a long spell, he came back home and went to work for WATL. Then, last September, Bill got the urge for adventure and he joined the Army.

Since being stationed at Fort Amador, Panama Canal Zone, "Bill" has been named official announcer and program director of the three radio stations which embrace the Panama Coast Artillery network and has been made editor of the Panama Coast Artillery News, a 36-page paper.

Bill is the 24-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Verner, formerly of Atlanta, now of Birmingham.

New Water Meters Reach Hapeville

Hapeville city officials announced yesterday that 36 water meters, ordered three months ago, were received late Monday and will be installed immediately in new homes denied water because the meters were not available.

Defense manufacturing was said to have delayed shipment of the meters. Six dozen more, ordered for some 25 new houses in Mount Zion section and other new houses in the city limits, still have not been delivered, Elvis Hopper, city clerk, said.

Mayor Eugene King described the water meter shortage as a "serious situation," and said the city would obtain them as early as possible.

52,000 Will Resume Garment Jobs Today

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—(P)—The city's dressmaking industry will resume work on a full scale tomorrow after a one-day stoppage that affected 52,000 workers. Harry Uviller, impartial chairman of the industry, late today directed two manufacturers' associations to re-open their plants pending final settlement of their dispute with jobbers.

Knudsen Sees Opportunities

merely asked for work. There's always something to be done. In 41 years I've been out of work just eight months, and six of them I was sick.

I never questioned whether I was born American or an American with a hyphen from the day I landed. Now and then I was called a squarehead. But that didn't hurt me. Some people take their country with them wherever they go, like the character in Mark Twain, but to my way of thinking those who come to the United States bring faith in America with them, the love of freedom, and self-expression that brought people over from the first. That's the source of America's strength. It's the only country in the world that is constantly being reborn.

Taken for Granted. Yet I think that Americans take their democracy for granted, the way we take light and air and life for granted. Not because they are indifferent but because it is a part of them, a part of their flesh and blood. We don't feel the need of discussing and explaining over the fact that we have two arms and two legs. We accept them as natural. But that doesn't mean that we wouldn't be willing to do without them.

We don't need to supercharge patriotism in America, but we can be sure that it will be there if it is needed.

I have often been asked if I see danger in the fact that we are all immigrants at one time or another. I do not. Perhaps some of the first generation in this country have a little difficulty mixing, but the second and third generations are born Americans.

Many of our immigrants never learn English well enough to understand what democracy has done and is doing for them, and so they are easy subjects for propaganda in their own native tongue, but I think this is gradually taking care of itself. The children do much to explain American ways and institutions to their elders.

I thought that I spoke English when I arrived from Denmark, but when I opened my mouth strange sounds came out of it! I had no money for lessons so I talked to children, and every night after work I sat on the stoop of my boarding house and talked to the children on my street. Children use the simplest, most direct speech in the world. So I learned English quickly. Perhaps that is one reason why I have always felt so at home.

Just Another Name. Immigrant is just another name for pioneer. We all came here to find independence and self-expression as much as wealth. In the old days, the Vikings went forth and sold their shield and sword and battle axe to the service of other men, and were loyal to the men who treated them fairly and squarely.

The American people as I know them will consent to any sacrifice they think is needed to preserve our democracy, but they wouldn't put up a minute with pomp and pretensions. Americans would laugh the pretensions of dictatorship out of countenance.

I never fail to get a kick out of coming back to the United States and seeing the pilot coming aboard at Sandy Hook. No fuss, no uniforms, no salutes. A man dressed in a slouch hat with a cigar in his mouth climbs the ladder. A short greeting on the bridge. He goes, bing! bing! and off we go. That's America as I see it, and may God help us to always keep it that way. (Next: Dr. Albert Einstein, world-famous scientist, outlines his credo as an American citizen.)

Canadians in Key Spot, Troops Told

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Aug. 26.—(By Canadian Press)—The Canadian prime minister, Mackenzie King, reviewed Canadian troops on four parade grounds today, and on each visit he told the men that Winston Churchill had asked him to say they were guarding the most vital spot in the British empire.

King relayed assurances, also, that the men were in their present posts because military authorities of both Britain and Canada believed they could best serve the empire war effort there; that the Canadian government had placed no restriction on moving troops anywhere that army headquarters and Canadian officers deemed it advisable, and that the Canadian government would agree to any movement so recommended.

King was given vigorous cheers after he had spoken. (Last Saturday, when the prime minister spoke to 10,000 Canadian troops, he was both cheered and booed.)

Natives of Atlanta Furnish 'Good Copy' Here or Afar

By SALLY FORTH.

• • • ATLANTANS HAVE the knack of being "good copy" whether at home or abroad, and hardly a day goes by that Sally does not hear interesting news of localities summing in distant spots.

When the New Orleans Times-Picayune came off the press last Sunday, gracing one of its pages was a charming likeness of Mrs. Eben Hardie Jr. and her pretty children, Eben III and Ruth. The picture is in color and occupies a conspicuous position on the page.

Mrs. Hardie, the former Ruth Miller, of Atlanta, is a very close friend of Robin and Ida Nevin Brookshire, who recently moved to New Orleans from Houston, Texas. With her children she is now visiting in Waynesville, North Carolina.

From New York drifts news that stunning Frances Weinman Latimer, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Weinman, and her little daughter, Cary, have moved into an apartment in the Ritz Towers, where they will remain until they depart for Miami Beach to spend the winter. Frances, you know, is studying for the stage and radio.

Among fascinating spots which constantly attract Atlantans is the Monte Carlo Beach Club in New York's Mayfair section, where a guest in fancy transportation to the Monte Carlo on the French Riviera! The setting, Sally hears, is done in yellow and green with pale yellow canopy and Mediterranean blue ceiling. Long palms, green on one side and yellow on the other, grow in realistic arrangement in the sand-bordered sides, and chairs and wall seats are upholstered in yellow leather to match the awnings! The mirrored side and top walls add lengthy illusion to the entrance, and an orchestra discourses plaintive music.

Seen there recently by members of the Atlanta colony was diminutive Gloria Swanson dining with Ilka Chase, both of whom were wearing midnight blue dresses fashioned in the height of style. Gloria's hat resembled a white Dutch cap, and fitted tightly over her ears. She wore big round pearl earrings, and Ilka had perched atop her dark brown and curly bobbed hair a black velvet bow. Glamorous Brenda Fraser Kelly attracts as many admirers around her table as ever, and was seen hatless, her dark hair reaching her shoulders in the bob made famous by her. She was dressed in black, her costume being accented by diamond clips, and was engaged in animated conversation with her friend, Beth Leary. Friends stopped at her table to welcome her home from her Hawaiian honeymoon with her husband, John Simms (Shipwreck) Kelly.

Bert Parks, long-time announcer on WGST, is making a name for himself in the radio world. He is master of ceremonies on the Cougar hour for a well-known cigaret, and is just about the handsomest young "emcee" on the network. The Nashville Tennessean newspaper featured a photograph of Mr. and Mrs. Stratton Foster in one of its recent issues, "Society Goes Yachting" having captioned the page, Mrs. Foster, you know, is the former Eleanor Gray, popular daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Inman Gray. The Fosters are posed aboard Henry Tyne's 27-foot auxiliary sloop, "Myalibi," which is the only boat of its type sailed on the Cumberland river. Yachting is fast becoming one of the most popular and fashionable sports of Nashvillians, who can be seen frequently "riding the waves."

• • • ACCENTING Mildred Wagner's exquisite bridal attire will be several unusual articles of sentiment which belonged to members of her family. Mildred, you recall, will marry Lieutenant Thad Davis Jr., of Marion, Ala., on Sunday, and as a bride she will ornament her costume with a diamond circlet pin which was a wedding gift from her father to her mother.

Trimming her veil will be lace which graced the bridal attire of her mother, the late Mrs. B. H. Wagner, while lace used by her aunt, Mrs. Victor Moore, on her wedding veil, will adorn Mildred's dress. The lace from Mrs. Moore's veil was brought to her from Europe by her father, the late Dr. George H. Noble, who is Mildred's grandfather.

An added feature of Mildred's costume will be a pair of lace mitts which belonged to her grandmother, the late Mrs. George H. Noble. Instead of the traditional bouquet, Mildred will carry an ivory and lace fan, showered with orchids and stephanotis, which also belonged to Mrs. Noble.

• • • GLIMPSED here and there: Rannie Geissler (Mrs. Roy) Kling recently seen at the Mirador Room wearing a blue and yellow printed crepe with a matching turban. . . . Rosalie Brooks (Mrs. Bob) Hall also seen at the Mirador Room and being welcomed from her honeymoon to Miami and Nassau. . . . Peggy Price (Mrs. Robert) Noell, a recent bride, describing the furnishings of her new apartment on Peachtree-Memorial drive. . . . Andy Dumas chatting with Lois Merriam (Mrs. Mark) Palmour. . . . Ethel Erwin and her fiancé, Dr. George Archer, driving out Peachtree street in the 8 o'clock traffic in a red convertible. . . . A popular brunet deb of two seasons ago showing a beautiful diamond on her "third finger, left hand." . . . Members of the Matrons' Circle for Tallulah Falls School reminding Atlantans to volunteer Sunday dinner invitations to soldiers on September 7, instead of next Sunday, because men will be on leave over Labor Day.

Miss Charlotte Sewell, whose marriage to Lieutenant Jack W. Worley, of Detroit, Mich., takes place on Saturday evening, was feted yesterday at two social affairs.

The first party given in compliment to Miss Sewell was the breakfast at which her sister, Mrs. Lamar Plunkett, of Charleston, S. C., and Mrs. Guy Darnell, of Bremen, entertained at Davison's. Marking the guests' covers were tiny seashells decorated with hand-painted flowers which were brought from Europe by Mrs. Plunkett. The centerpiece was formed of pastel-shaded summer flowers.

Present were Mesdames Warren

P. Sewell, Roy B. Sewell, Van Wall, F. L. Landers, John Wilson, H. R. Halsey, Edward Bosworth, of Rome; Misses Harriet Brigham, of Milwaukee, Wis.; Margaret Landers, and Ruth Dabney Smith.

Later yesterday Miss Sewell was central figure at the bridge-luncheon given by Miss Eleanor Bryan, the affair having assembled a few close friends of the honor guest.

Miss Sarah Mathews feted Miss Sewell at her home on Virginia avenue on Monday afternoon. In the dining room the table had as its central decoration an embossed wedding cake, flanked on either side by crystal candelabra holding white tapers. Ices molded in the shape of a miniature bride and groom and mints embossed with valley lilies carried out the wedding motif.

The guests included: Misses Anne Gellerstedt, Catharine New-

Popular Visitors Are Entertained

The attractive Pennsylvania visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph P. Black at their home on Oakdale road were honored yesterday at two social affairs.

The first party, which feted Misses Cynthia Searing and Frances T. Pew, of Ardmore, Pa., and Miss Ardis Flick, of Bryn Mawr, Pa., was the luncheon given by Mrs. Arthur Tufts at her Clifton road residence.

A low, blue pottery container

filled with rubrum lilies formed the centerpiece for the dining table.

Invited to the affair were Misses Searing, Pew, Flick, Margeretta Black, Frances Young, Sibilla Pringle, and Mrs. Hines Roberts. Last evening Mr. and Mrs. Black feted the trio of prominent belles at a dinner party at their home. Sharing honors were Mr. and Mrs. Black's son, George Black, of Chester, Pa., and James B. Clelland, also of Chester.

A profusion of summer blossoms further beautified the reception rooms. Gracing the center of the buffet table was a crystal epergne filled with an arrangement of yellow flowers.

Mrs. John F. MacDougald and Miss Margaretta Black assisted the hosts in entertaining the guests.

Miss Elizabeth Alexander Honored Prior To Marriage

Two additional parties are announced today for Miss Elizabeth Alexander, whose marriage to Dr. Harry Vassar Higgins will be a social event of September 9. On Friday Mrs. Allan Davis will be hostess at a bridge party at her home on Peachtree Way for the lovely bride-to-be.

Invited are Mesdames Bealy Smith, John Adams, Mary Malone White, H. H. Aderhold, A. C. Henderson, Paul Seydel Jr., Harlow Autry, J. Harry Alexander and Misses Frances Davis, Carrie Allen Alexander and Margaret Colbert.

On September 7 Miss Alexander and Mr. Higgins will be central figures at the buffet supper to be given by Mr. and Mrs. John Adams, who will entertain at their home on Peachtree street.

Yesterday Mrs. Bealy Smith entertained at a soft drink party at her home on Peachtree street for Miss Alexander.

Invited were Mesdames William Leonard, Allan Davis, Paul Seydel Jr., Griffith Edwards, James Brown, John Adams, Alex Gaines, William Armstrong, John F. Evans, Robert Ward, Jackson Dismukes, Bruce Logue, Fred Ragland, Mary Malone White, B. W. Marshall, J. H. Alexander, and Misses Carrie Scandrett, Julie McClatchey and Carrie Allen Alexander.

LOUELLA PARSONS Urges Richard Whorf for Gershwin Role

Cabbage leaves are stuffed with salmon rolls to make an economical main dish.

Thrifty Salmon Makes A Tasty Dish

Here's something interesting to do with two such simple and homey foods as cabbage and salmon. Cabbage leaves are stuffed with salmon, baked, and served with a Spanish sauce, making a dish tasty as can be at very small cost.

This dish some may recognize as a variation of the meat-stuffed cabbage leaves of Russian or Bohemian origin. In foreign restaurants one finds ground meat, well seasoned, rolled up in cabbage leaves and served with a

Salmon Stuffed Cabbage Leaves.

MY DAY: Pensacola Stresses Athletic Program

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Monday.—We said au revoir this morning to the young Duke of Kent and his aide, who started off on a long day of inspection which will take them to Norfolk, Va., and back here by 7 o'clock this evening. I think what impresses me most of all in meeting English people today is the great strain under which they have been and their sense of obligation in fulfilling whatever they consider is their duty. In coming to Canada and the United States, they represent the British people and they try in every way to express to us the appreciation they feel for the constant flow of aid from this country.

I have been able to say so little in my column the last few days about what I have actually seen, that I want to add a bit to my impressions of Pensacola, Fla. While there we lunched at the San Carlos hotel with the mayor. I think one gets the feeling in that attractive hotel of the change and growth of the whole city.

Life is really humming in Pensacola. Captain Read drove me around in the morning to see as much as possible of the Naval Training Station. I saw the various air squadrons where the boys learn the different phases of flying which are necessary in the Navy. I saw their auditorium, where movies are given free for their entertainment, and where many classes are also held.

I saw the section which is given over to the training of British pilots and met their commanding officers, who spoke with appreciation of the training their boys are receiving. I do not think I have seen in any station a more complete setup for physical exercise and recreation. Every available space is used for courts and playgrounds, so that the boys may have different kinds of exercise according to their tastes.

Great attention is paid to their physical development through participation in the athletic program. Mr. Gene Tunney and his superiors must be very happy over their accomplishments along these lines.

There is, as yet, no USO building or program being carried on in the city, though the money-raising campaign went over the top. It seems to me important that these buildings be erected as quickly as possible and the programs begin to function, for they are much needed in the towns near our various training stations and camps.

Woman's Quiz

Q. Please give a recipe for sour cabbage.

A. Use 2 apples, 1 onion, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 1-2 medium-sized cabbage, 2 cups water, 1-3 cup brown sugar, 1-2 cup vinegar, 1 tablespoon butter. Chop the apples and the onion fine. Put them in a frying pan with melted butter and fry for 10 minutes. Add the shredded cabbage, and water a little at a time to keep steaming. Cook for 20 minutes. When tender, add the sugar and vinegar. Before serving, add salt, pepper and butter.

Q. What ingredients are used in bottled carbonated beverages?
A. Most of them contain water, sugar, fruit acids, flavors from fruits or from herbs and roots, or synthetic flavors, and carbon dioxide.

John Garfield Loses The Coveted Part To Rising Young Genius

By Louella O. Parsons.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 27.—(INS). Richard Whorf, Warner's triple-threat genius (he writes, directs, acts and is good to little children) is out of "Bridges Built at Night" because Jack Warner has more ambitious plans for him. First, he will be teamed with Priscilla Lane in "Remember Tomorrow," an original by Marion Parsonet, and then, don't say I told you, but Young Whorf, is the current leading contender for the George Gershwin role. Ira Gershwin checks in on the Warner lot next week to help along with the script based on the life of his late brother, and if they'll pardon my jumping the gun, I think Whorf is set for the part.

This will probably be a blow to John Garfield, who has had his heart set on playing Gershwin since he first heard the studio was planning to film it. I saw Whorf with Lunt and Fontanne when he set the critics raving, and he is all Warners say he is, well worth waiting for in his first movie.

Red-headed Marla Monet, who has had more night club publicity than movie roles, is going to get a picture at long last at Universal where they've been secretly grooming her. She will be the big attraction of a south sea island in a little number called "White Savage," with none other than Brian Donlevy, Brod Crawford and Andy Devine paying court to her. The whole thing sounds a little on the Dorothy Lamour side—particularly after I heard six leopards had been rounded up to snarl and snap at Marla. There will be no pooches "standing-in" for the leopards, either. (How I wish I could forget that story!) Brian, by the way, gets the girl, which proves he's definitely moving out of the mean class and into the hero roles.

The idea of Monte Woolley as King Edward VII is really an inspiration. Woolley doesn't look unlike King Edward, Queen Victoria's "boy bestie," whose colorful reign lay down in history as one of the most pleasant eras in English history. We can thank Cole Porter for the idea. In fact, Cole is suggesting that a musical comedy be written with Edward VII as the central figure. The whole thing leaked out at a birthday party Cole gave in honor of Woolley and to welcome home Howard Sturges who has been serving with the Quakers in the stricken areas of France. How about a movie based on the lives of Edward and the beautiful Queen Alexandra?

The last time I saw Lucille Ball she was crying her eyes out on Ventura Boulevard because a negligent driver had crashed into the back of her brand-new station wagon and wrecked it. Well, Lucille has reason to smile today because she's going back to her first love, musicals, in "Hit the Deck," in which she will be the singing and dancing star. Personally, I like Mrs. Desi Arnaz far better in musicals than in the heavier things she attempted for awhile. "Hit the Deck" made $3,000,000 when RKO filmed it for the first time, which may be one reason they're reviewing all the old tunes, including "Hallelujah!," again.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Virginia Morgan is the lovely occupying Randy Scott's leisure moments these evenings. John Barrymore a nightly visitor at the rehearsals of John Murray Anderson's "Silver Screen Revue." Florence Rice has been invited to follow in her dad's footsteps and write a column of sports from the feminine angle. Well, Grantland can give his daughter lots of pointers. Tom Brown and his ex-flame, Dorothy O'Kelly, did a reconciliation act at Charlie Foy's night spot. Carmen Miranda leaves Monday by motor with her family to take a look at the countryside from here to New York and see how the country folk enjoy life. She will take a month, stopping at many towns en route. John Garfield staging it at the Copacabana and talking with George Raft. Both are in bad at the moment with their studio. Kay Francis left today for a three-week visit to the Ohio farm of the Louis Bromfields. The Bob Prestons are building a new home in Brentwood and in spite of their denial, rumor is that they have dated the stork. Don Ameche joins the army of women-smackers, and strikes Joan Bennett in "Confirm or Deny." Tennis Champ Donald Budge and his bride, the former Deirdre Cuselman, are in Hollywood and are househunting. They will make their home here. Eddie Sutherland is entertaining Vincent Youmans, well-known composer. In achieving this perfecting of a little action on your part. Your case is like that of hundreds of other women who let their families drive them into a rut, who let themselves become submerged in the life and affairs of others, and who fade out of the picture. What would you do, just walk out on the whole works? I know I could not be happy to leave my mother, and I am almost on the verge of a nervous breakdown. What can I do to show my son that I cannot help conditions as they are?

Family Drudge Must Escape Now

By DIXIE GEORGE.

Dear Dixie: I am just another widow who came back home when my husband died. I went to work, trying to educate my son, paying as I went along for his board. During this time my mother's health failed. I stopped work to take over at home and care for her. As time went on she became an invalid and I have never left her. My boy is now of age. He has a good job, and he boards in the town where he works. He does not care about coming home. He says it does not seem like home to him.

I have to work very hard and do all the house work as there are five of us in the family. I keep a nice, clean place for those who are working. We have good food and plenty of it. I do everything I can. I never get a penny, not even a thank you, and the few clothes I get are what friends give me. I do not have a sister, but several brothers and in-laws. They all come here and never offer to help me do a thing. What would you do, just walk out on the whole works? I know I could not be happy to leave my mother, and I am almost on the verge of a nervous breakdown. What can I do to show my son that I cannot help conditions as they are?

TROUBLED WIDOW.
Yes, I think you should walk out on the whole works, and go to your son and make a home for him. Remember you are all he has in the world and you say there are others who can take your place at home. I agree with you that it is hard to walk out on your own mother, but I think that with the situation as it is, you would be perfectly justified in walking out. You can always help your mother, but there is no help for you to spend your days slaving for the rest of the family. It is a good thing that you realize that you are being imposed upon, and I think that it is time for a little action on your part. Your case is like that of hundreds of other women who let their families drive them into a rut, who let themselves become submerged in the life and affairs of others, and who fade out of the picture. What would you do, just walk out on the whole works? I know I could not be happy to leave my mother, and I am almost on the verge of a nervous breakdown. What can I do to show my son that I cannot help conditions as they are?

Even sickness does not justify the failure to teach children consideration for others.

Fall Bride-Elect Is Complimented

Two social affairs were given yesterday in compliment to Miss Betty Taylor, who will marry Vernon Kyle at a brilliant ceremony next month.

The first party which honored Miss Taylor was the soft drink party at which Miss Elizabeth Davis was hostess at her home on Peachtree Hills avenue.

Throughout the Davis residence a profusion of roses and marigolds were used for decorations. Mrs. S. C. Davis assisted her daughter in entertaining the guests, who included a few close friends of the honor guest.

Miss Taylor and Mr. Kyle shared honors last evening at the dinner party given by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Heinz Jr. at the Rainbow roof of the Ansley hotel.

Three nosegays of pink roses and stephanotis decorated the banquet table. Marking the guests' places were cards in the shape of miniature brides and grooms.

Members of the Taylor-Kyle wedding personnel attended the party.

Miss Mary Lib Beers Feted at Luncheon.

An interesting event of yesterday was the luncheon and bathroom shower at which Mrs. Julian Harrison Jr. and Miss Evelyn Harrison entertained at the home of Mrs. Harrison on Peachtree road, honoring Miss Mary Lib Beers, prominent fall bride-elect.

Miss Beers will marry Frederic W. Watriss, of Bernardsville, N. J., at a brilliant ceremony on September 20.

A crystal bowl filled with white flowers centered the table. Miniature dolls dressed like Miss Beers' bridal attendants marked the guests' covers.

The guests included Misses Joy O'Brien, Dolly Hewlett, Georgia Adams, Helen McDuffie, Mary Jo Brownlee, Martha Merritt, Gladys Randall, Mesdames Forrest Adair III and Thomas Milner Jr.

Howerton Choral Club To Be Complimented.

Professor and Mrs. Edgar Howerton will entertain informally honoring their choral club and pupils with a buffet supper on Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock at their home in College Park.

Miss Bess de Mauney and Mrs. Janet Henry will assist in entertaining.

Your Daughter Has a Right to Know

It is every mother's duty to tell her daughter physical facts. How much better that she learn them from you, rather than from girls her own age. In feminine hygiene, facts may be distasteful, or wholly untrue. Result, many brides use douches of over-strong solutions of acids which can actually burn or scar delicate tissues. Today, there is no need to use such deadly solutions. Science has given us Zonite, germicidal, non-caustic, yet kills germs, bacteria on contact. Actually destroys undesirable odors. Protects personal cleanliness. Most important, safe for delicate tissues. Over 20,000,000 bottles already bought. Free Book Tells Intimate Facts. Give your daughter this frankly written booklet, "Feminine Hygiene Today," which you can get FREE, sent to you postpaid in plain wrapper. Send name and address to Zonite Products Corporation, Dept. 347-A, 370 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y.

Miss Cullens Becomes Bride Of John Booth II in Camilla

CAMILLA, Ga., Aug. 26.—Miss Louise Cullens and John Newton Booth II, of Atlanta, were united in marriage at an impressive ceremony on the evening of August 21 at the First Methodist church here.

The service was performed by Rev. N. H. Williams in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends.

Mrs. Temperance Lear, of Cairo, played while the guests assembled. Jack Ledbetter and Elmore Floyd, both of Camilla, served as ushers. Harold S. Tiller, J. K. Davis Jr., of Athens; Tom L. Lane, of Pelham, and Sam Leverette Jr., of Atlanta, served as groomsmen.

Misses Charlotte McQueen, Edwina Roles, Janie Spence, all of Camilla, and Mrs. Virginia Morris, of Decatur, were bridesmaids.

They were gownned alike in taffeta. The dresses were trimmed with wide bands of lace on the skirts and had old-fashioned bodices. Each carried bouquets of California asters of colors matching their dresses. Miss McQueen wore evening rose; Miss Roles, aqua; Miss Spence, peach, and Mrs. Morris, aqua.

Miss Frank E. Cullens, younger sister of the bride, and Miss Charlotte Willford, of Camilla, junior bridesmaids, wore similar dresses and carried California asters. Miss Cullens wore lavender taffeta and Miss Willford wore blue taffeta.

Mrs. Alton Curtis, sister of the bride, of Atlanta, the matron of honor, wore dusty rose taffeta and her flowers were the same shade of rubrum lilies. Miss Sara Brooks, maid of honor, wore periwinkle taffeta and carried rubrum lilies.

George Joiner III bore the ring on a satin pillow. The flower girls, Susan Brooks, in pink taffeta, and Evelyn Twitty, in blue, carried old-fashioned nosegays of asters.

The bride, who entered with her father, Plant C. Cullens, was beautiful in her wedding dress of white satin. It was made with a V neckline, trimmed with seed pearls. The veil, which was edged with Chantilly lace, was made coronet effect and held with orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of white orchids, bride's roses and stephanotis. She wore a single strand of pearls, the gift of the groom.

Acting as best man was Engsign Jack Spivey, of Pensacola, Florida.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cullens, where they were assisted in receiving by the groom's mother, Mrs. John Lamar Booth; his grandmother, Mrs. Rosa Lee Booth, and the grandmothers of the bride, Mrs. George Wade and Mrs. W. W. Cullens.

Club Holds Meeting.

The Peachtree Hills Woman's Club held its regular meeting recently at the home of Mrs. A. C. Frost, on Peachtree Hills avenue.

Mrs. C. J. Stegal, president, presided.

Due to illness in her home Mrs. Charles Harrell, recording secretary, resigned, and Mrs. V. Michel was appointed to fill the unexpired term.

Mrs. J. P. McMahon reported that flowers and magazines had been sent to Hospital No. 48. The president asked those not already helping with Red Cross work to make an effort to do so, as this work is very necessary.

The program was in charge of Mrs. Grover Tillis, garden chairman, who gave a report on the fifth district garden meeting, and introduced C. J. Hudson, who talked on "Fall Gardening."

Circus Urged To Move Back Date of Show

Mayor Acts in Effort To Halt Spread of Polio.

Circuses and the present infantile paralysis epidemic don't go together, and yesterday Mayor LeCraw wired the management of Cole Brothers Circus to cancel an engagement in Atlanta for next Monday and Tuesday and to postpone it until a later date.

The mayor's action came after he had received a letter from Dr. T. F. Abercrombie, director of the State Department of Health, in which Abercrombie urged that the scheduled appearance of the circus be postponed. Copies of Abercrombie's letter also went to Dr. John P. Kennedy, city health officer; Dr. Roy W. McGee, Fulton county health officer, and Dr. J. R. Evans, DeKalb county health officer.

In the wire to the circus management, LeCraw said: "Upon recommendation of the director of the Georgia State Department of Health concurred in by our city health officer we must request you to postpone your showing in Atlanta until a later date. Letter follows."

In the letter the mayor suggests the showing be postponed until October, when the weather will be cooler. He warned that if the scheduled showing takes place next week "your attendance will probably be affected by public feeling."

A portion of Dr. Abercrombie's letter follows:

"In view of the fact that we have had such an epidemic of infantile paralysis in this area, I feel compelled to call to your mind that the congregating of a large group of people, not only from the city and county, but from the entire Atlanta trade area, is likely to cause a flare-up of our epidemic, resulting in a large number of additional cases which we might not otherwise have. Particularly are we afraid of the consequences in the outlying counties where the disease has not yet struck with such force."

"I believe that the showing of this circus at this time would be most unwise, and I therefore request that they not be permitted to show here as scheduled."

Gallup Poll Reveals: Service School Policy Opposed

By GEORGE GALLUP,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.
Copyright, 1941.

PRINCETON, N. J., Aug. 26.—

A large majority of American voters polled in a nation-wide survey believe that young men who wish to enter West Point or Annapolis should be allowed to apply direct without having to secure an appointment from their congressman.

Although a few men are taken directly from the regular Army each year, the great bulk of those entering the Army or Navy Academy at present must obtain appointment from a congressman in their area.

In this session of congress a bill was introduced by Senator Robert Reynolds, chairman of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, to authorize the Secretary of War to fill about 180 vacancies at West Point without the usual routine of congressional appointment. The bill passed the senate and was favorably reported by the House Military Affairs Committee. But the house opposed the measure and killed it July 16.

The Institute survey put the following issue to a vote among a cross-section of the population from coast to coast.

"Should young men who want to go to West Point or Annapolis be permitted to apply directly for entrance, or should they first be required to get an appointment from their congressman, as at present?"

The results were:
Apply Directly 64%
Through Congressman 15%
No Opinion 17%

The public's desire to have these appointments placed on an open competitive basis stems from a belief that "politics" should not enter into military training. By far the most frequent comment made by voters in explaining their opinion is that selection for West Point or Annapolis should be entirely removed from all consideration of politics.

"Everybody who wants to go may not know a congressman," is the way one typical voter puts it. Another, a housewife interviewed in Ohio, said:

"What's a congressman got to do with whether a man's a soldier or not? He can't tell."

Army Vacancies Listed in Panama

Vacancies in the Army for young men exist in Panama, Puerto Rico, and in the Air Corps at Jefferson Barracks, Mo. Technical Sergeant Cecil Mayes, Army Recruiting Officer for the Atlanta Area, announced yesterday.

Panama offers the following branches of services: Air Corps, Infantry, Field Artillery, Coast Artillery, Engineers, Quartermaster Department, Medical Department and Chemical Warfare. Openings in the Field Artillery, Coast Artillery, Air Corps, Engineers and the Ordnance Department exist in Puerto Rico.

The Army recruiting office is located at 321 New Post Office.

French Guards Face Death in Any Sabotage

Vichy Acts To 'Aryanize' Jewish Business Throughout France

VICHY, Unoccupied France, Aug. 26.—(P)—German and French authorities seeking to stem a tide of disorders in occupied France decreed new death penalties today for failure to halt railway sabotage.

French civilian watchmen conscripted to mount guard over railways around Paris will pay with their lives for any sabotage in their sectors under the new ruling.

Tomorrow a special French summary court authorized to sentence to death all Communists and Anarchists in the occupied zone is to start hearings. It was created by the Vichy government four days ago.

The Vichy regime also fell into step with the German program of "Aryanizing" of Jewish business by empowering Jewish Commissioner Xavier Vallat to name Aryan administrators for Jewish-owned establishments throughout France.

Marshal Petain's order August 19 sending the permanent secretariat of the virtually disbanded chamber of deputies and senate to Mont Dore, 60 miles from Vichy, evoked a letter of protest from a number of members.

The letter complained against being shunted away from Vichy for meetings. The Paris newspaper Aujourd'hui laughed at the protest, saying "parliamentarians refuse to die."

It was pointed out that members no longer get salaries and are forbidden to meet as members of political groups.
